

1 Karen C. Tumlin (CA Bar No. 234691)
2 Esther H. Sung (CA Bar No. 255962)
3 Laura Flores-Perilla (CA Bar No. 355645)
4 Hillary Li (GA Bar No. 898375)*
5 Brandon Galli-Graves (TX Bar No. 24132050)*

6 JUSTICE ACTION CENTER

7 P.O. Box 27280
8 Los Angeles, CA 90027
9 (323) 450-7272
10 karen.tumlin@justiceactioncenter.org
11 esther.sung@justiceactioncenter.org
12 laura.flores-perilla@justiceactioncenter.org
13 hillary.li@justiceactioncenter.org
14 brandon.galli-graves@justiceactioncenter.org

15 Counsel for Plaintiffs

16 * Motion for pro hac vice to be filed

17 [Additional co-counsel on signature page]

18 UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
19 NORTHERN DISTRICT OF CALIFORNIA

20 GLOBAL NURSE FORCE; INTERNATIONAL
21 UNION, UNITED AUTOMOBILE, AEROSPACE
22 AND AGRICULTURAL IMPLEMENT
23 WORKERS OF AMERICA LOCAL 4811;
24 INTERNATIONAL UNION, UNITED
25 AUTOMOBILE, AEROSPACE AND 26 AGRICULTURAL IMPLEMENT WORKERS OF 27 AMERICA; SERVICE EMPLOYEES
28 INTERNATIONAL UNION, AFL-CIO
COMMITTEE OF INTERNS AND RESIDENTS;
AMERICAN ASSOCIATION OF UNIVERSITY
PROFESSORS; GLOBAL VILLAGE ACADEMY
COLLABORATIVE; SOCIETY OF THE DIVINE
WORD – CHICAGO PROVINCE; FATHERS OF
ST. CHARLES; CHURCH ON THE HILL, D/B/A
ALGOOD FIRST BAPTIST; JOHN SMITH;
PHOENIX DOE,

Plaintiffs,

Case No. 3:25-cv-8454

COMPLAINT FOR DECLARATORY AND INJUNCTIVE RELIEF

Administrative Procedure Act Case

1 v.

2 DONALD J. TRUMP, in his official capacity as
3 President of the United States; U.S.
4 DEPARTMENT OF HOMELAND SECURITY;
5 KRISTI NOEM, in her official capacity as
6 Secretary of Homeland Security; U.S.
7 CITIZENSHIP AND IMMIGRATION
8 SERVICES; JOSEPH B. EDLOW, in his official
9 capacity as Director, U.S. Citizenship and 10 Immigration Services; U.S. CUSTOMS AND 11 BORDER PROTECTION; RODNEY SCOTT, in
12 his official capacity as Commissioner of U.S.
13 Customs and Border Protection; U.S.
14 DEPARTMENT OF STATE; MARCO RUBIO, in 15 his official capacity as Secretary of State,

16 Defendants.

TABLE OF CONTENTS

1
2
3
4
5
6
7
8
9
10
11
12
13
14
15
16
17
18 19 20
21
22
23
24
25
26
27
28

I. INTRODUCTION 1

II. JURISDICTION AND VENUE 5

III. DIVISIONAL ASSIGNMENT 6

IV. PARTIES 6

V. LEGAL BACKGROUND 12

 A. Congress Created the H-1B Visa to Ensure the U.S. Could Attract Necessary Workers in Specialty Occupations 13

 B. In Designing the H-1B Program, Congress Included Protections for U.S. Workers 14

 C. Congress Created a Detailed Statutory Scheme to Govern the H-1B
 Process That Balances Private and Public Sector Needs 16

 1. H-1B Registration and Lottery for Cap-Subject H-1B Visas 16

 2. Cap-Exempt H-1B Visas 17

 3. H-1B Petition Process 17

 4. Visa Issuance and Entry 18

 D. Congress Established a Detailed Fee System for H-1Bs That Sets
 Parameters on Fees and Dictates Their Use 19

 E. The President’s Ability to Restrict Entry Under the INA Does Not Authorize Him to Override Congress’s Comprehensive H-1B Statute 21

VI. FACTUAL ALLEGATIONS 22

 A. The President’s Proclamation 22

 1. The Proclamation is Based on Multiple Errors of Fact and Ignores the Benefits of the H-1B Program to the American Economy 24

 2. The Proclamation’s Exorbitant $100,000 Fee Is Unprecedented and Unjustified, and the Exception Process is Ripe for Abuse 25

 3. After the Ill-Planned Proclamation Caused Immediate Harm, the Government Began to Backtrack 26

1
2
3
4
5
6
7
8
9
10
11
12
13
14
15
16
17
18 19 20
21
22
23
24
25
26
27
28

B. The Agency Defendants Imposed a $100,000 Requirement for “Any”
New H-1B Petitions28

C. The Proclamation and Agency Policies Will Harm Plaintiffs and the Public Interest30

1. Health care 30

2. K-12 school systems 35

3. Religious organizations..... 39

4. Research and academic institutions 48

VII. CAUSES OF ACTION52

VIII. PRAYER FOR RELIEF60

I. INTRODUCTION

1
2 1. The H-1B visa program was established by Congress to provide a pathway for
3 American employers to hire skilled non-U.S.-workers in specialty occupations. There are around
4 half a million H-1B workers in the United States¹ across a range of specialty fields, including
5 researchers and workers in the science, technology, engineering, and mathematics (STEM)
6 fields; doctors, other healthcare providers, and medical researchers; university professors and K-
7 12 educators; and religious leaders. The standards for granting an H-1B petition focus on the 8 worker's specialized knowledge and academic credentials. While many H-1B workers are 9 employed in the computer technology industry, more than a third of all H-1B workers are in 10 other fields.²

13 2. The H-1B visa program is a critical pathway to hiring educators and healthcare
14 workers—two categories in high demand in the U.S.—who comprise 10% of all H-1B workers.³
15 The United States faces a projected shortfall of nearly 86,000 physicians in the next decade,
16 particularly in medically underserved areas of the United States and places with health
17 professional shortages, where nearly two-thirds of all foreign-trained physicians in the United 18 States—including almost 23,000 H-1B workers, between 2001 and 2024—practice.⁴ Nurses, too, 19 are in short supply, particularly after the COVID-19 pandemic drove many nurses out of the 20 profession and insufficient staffing raises nurses' stress level. K-12 school districts also rely on 21 the H-1B visa program to fill critical vacancies, especially in rural areas facing acute staffing
22
23
24

25 ¹ Maham Javaid & Adrián Blanco Ramos, Where H-1B visa holders are from, who hires them
26 and what they earn, Wash. Post (Sept. 24, 2025), <https://perma.cc/4YEH-DGLY>.

27 ² Id.

28 ³ Id.

⁴ AMA urges DHS to exempt physicians from new $100,000 H-1B visa fee, Am. Med. Ass'n
(Sept. 25, 2025), <https://perma.cc/T69U-67BY>.

1 shortages,⁵ and the H-1B visa program allows colleges and universities to hire talented scholars
2 and researchers from around the world, enabling American students to learn from and research
3 under the supervision of these experts in specialized fields.⁶
4

5 3. The H-1B program also allows religious organizations to retain priests and pastors
6 who have the language skills, cultural competency, and religious training needed to minister to 7 underserved populations, including poor refugee and migrant communities and economically
8 distressed Appalachian communities.

9 4. The H-1B program drives innovation and economic growth in the United States.
10 It allows employers to fill labor shortages in specialized fields and fuels workers to invest
11 additional dollars in the U.S. economy. It supports immigrants in creating new businesses that 12 expand the U.S. labor market.
13

14 5. H-1B visas are issued for an initial three-year term, and workers who hold these 15 visas can have either immigrant or nonimmigrant intent—meaning Congress intended there to be 16 a path to permanent residency for some H-1B workers, who may ultimately become lawful 17 permanent residents (i.e. “green card” holders)—and may freely travel in and out of the United 18 States.
19

20 6. The Immigration and Nationality Act (“INA”) sets forth a comprehensive and 21 detailed scheme for the H-1B program and process, specifying qualitative and numeric limits on 22 the number of H-1B visas to be granted, the standards for approving an H-1B petition from an
23
24
25

26 _____
27 ⁵ Administration Announces Changes to H-1B Visa Program, The School Superintendents
28 Association (Sept. 24, 2025), <https://perma.cc/ZT2K-BB2T>.

⁶ Ellie Davis, What Trump’s $100,000 Fee for Skilled-Worker Visas Could Mean for Higher Ed,
Chron. Higher Educ. (Sept. 22, 2025), <https://perma.cc/J6J5-UDAM>.

1 employer, the standards for detecting and addressing unlawful use of the program by employers,
2 and the fees to be charged and allocation and use of those funds by the government.

3 7. Without warning on Friday, September 19, 2025, President Trump issued a
4 Proclamation titled “Restriction on Entry of Certain Nonimmigrant Workers”⁷ (the “September
5 19 Proclamation”). The Proclamation “restricted” entry into the United States of workers on H-
6 1B visas, conditioning it on their employers making a $100,000 “payment” to the federal
7 government, starting less than 36 hours after issuance, at 12:01 am ET on Sunday, September 21, 8 2025.
9

10 8. At the Oval Office ceremony unveiling the Proclamation, Commerce Secretary
11 Howard Lutnick stated that it would be “a hundred-thousand dollars a year for H-1B visas” and 12 that “[e]ither the person is very valuable to the company and America, or they are going to depart
13 and the company is going to hire an American.”⁸
14

15 9. The broad language of the Proclamation and the unprecedented changes to this 16 long-standing program caused a widespread panic, with employers instructing employees to 17 return to the United States before 12:01 am ET on Sunday, September 21, and/or not to leave the 18 country at all. Workers rushed back to the United States, abandoning family events and 19 vacations, while others frantically requested to de-plane flights they had already boarded before
20 they left the United States.
21

22 10. Government agencies scrambled to respond to the chaos. Three agencies issued 23 public statements over the weekend, in the days and hours after the Proclamation: the United
24 States Citizenship and Immigration Services (“USCIS”) which adjudicates the employer
25

26
27 ⁷ Proclamation No. 10,973, 90 Fed. Reg. 46,027 (Sept. 19, 2025).

28 ⁸ Johana Bhuiyan, Trump signs proclamation imposing annual $100,000 fee on H-1B visas, The Guardian (Sept. 19, 2025), <https://perma.cc/GQ23-AX3U>.

1 petitions; the United States Department of State (“State” or “State Department”) which
2 adjudicates visa applications submitted by H-1B nonimmigrant workers; and United States
3 Customs and Border Protection (“CBP”) which inspects and admits foreign nationals seeking to 4 enter the United States.
5

6 11. Collectively, the agencies’ statements reflected the new policies the agencies
7 quickly adopted to implement the Proclamation: A one-time payment of $100,000 is required “on 8 submission” of “any” new H-1B petition filed after 12:01 am ET on September 21, 2025
9 (“$100,000 Requirement”). Payment is a condition for adjudication of any such H-1B petition,
10 consular processing for H-1B visas, and entry into the United States for H-1B workers.
11

12 12. While the agencies’ policies limit the $100,000 Requirement to new petitions and 13 carve out renewals, the new policies do not differentiate between petitions for workers who are 14 outside of the United States and those for workers who are already inside the United States,
15 seemingly expanding the Proclamation’s “entry” ban to include individuals who have already 16 entered the country, not just those “currently outside the United States” as stated in the 17 Proclamation.
18

19 13. Defendants’ abrupt imposition of the $100,000 Requirement is unlawful. The 20 President has no authority to unilaterally alter the comprehensive statutory scheme created by 21 Congress. Most fundamentally, the President has no authority to unilaterally impose fees, taxes
22 or other mechanisms to generate revenue for the United States, nor to dictate how those funds are 23 spent. The Constitution assigns the “power of the purse” to Congress, as one of its most 24 fundamental premises. Here, the President disregarded those limitations, asserted power he does 25 not have, and displaced a complex, Congressionally specified system for evaluating petitions and 26 granting H-1B visas. The Proclamation transforms the H-1B program into one where employers
27
28

1 must either “pay to play” or seek a “national interest” exemption, which will be doled out at the
2 discretion of the Secretary of Homeland Security, a system that opens the door to selective
3 enforcement and corruption.

4
5 14. Executive Branch agencies similarly cannot act contrary to or beyond the 6 authority conferred by statute, nor can they act beyond or contrary to their own regulations. In 7 immediately adopting the $100,000 Requirement without notice and comment, the agencies
8 failed to go through required regulatory processes. The $100,000 Requirement is also arbitrary
9 and capricious. The government failed to consider how extorting exorbitant fees will stifle
10 innovation. The government failed to consider harms to hospitals, churches, schools and 11 universities, and small businesses and non-profits, or how the fee will harm communities across 12 the nation. Indeed, economic data and studies confirm that the new $100,000 Requirement will 13 harm, not help, the U.S. economy and workers and their families in the United States.

14
15 15. Plaintiffs are a health care business that helps hospitals across the country fill
16 critical vacancies with qualified nurses from abroad, schools, religious organizations, labor
17 unions, and workers, who are all facing the sudden $100,000 Requirement. Plaintiffs bring this 18 action against President Donald J. Trump, the U.S. Department of Homeland Security (“DHS”),
19 its subagencies USCIS and CBP, the State Department, and the heads of these agencies
20 (collectively, “Defendants”), to challenge the legality and implementation of the Proclamation.
21 Plaintiffs seek declaratory relief and injunctive relief because the Proclamation and the agencies’
22 subsequent actions exceed the President’s Constitutional authority and contravene the statutory 23 H-1B process and program.
24
25

26 II. JURISDICTION AND VENUE

27 16. This Court has jurisdiction over this matter pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 1331.
28

1 17. Venue is proper in this district pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 1391(e)(1)(C). Plaintiff
2 Local 4811 of the International Union, United Automobile, Aerospace, and Agricultural 3 Implement Workers of America (“UAW Local 4811”), maintains its principal place of business in 4 Berkeley, California. Plaintiff Phoenix Doe also resides in the Northern District of California.
5 There is no real property at issue in this case.
6

7 18. Joinder is proper in this action as the questions of law are identical to all Plaintiffs
8 in this action.

9 III. DIVISIONAL ASSIGNMENT

10 19. Per N.D. Cal. Civ. L.R. 3-2(c), this action shall be assigned to the San 11 Francisco/Oakland Division, because Plaintiff UAW Local 4811 is headquartered in Alameda
12 County and has affected members at UCSF.
13

14 IV. PARTIES

15 20. Plaintiff Global Nurse Force is a limited liability company with its principal 16 place of business in Laguna Beach, California. For the past decade, Global Nurse Force has been 17 connecting talented international nurses with healthcare facilities around the world. Global Nurse
18 Force has placed over 10,000 nurses at more than 175 hospitals throughout the UK, Ireland,
19 Canada, Australia and the Middle East. In the United States, where there has been a growing
20 nursing shortage, Global Nurse Force has assisted U.S. health systems to recruit highly skilled 21 and experienced international nurses on H-1B specialty worker visas. Global Nurse Force
22 operates a direct-hire model where the nurses come in as permanent employees of the hospital
23 and receive the same pay and benefits as the hospital’s regular staff. Global Nurse Force takes 24 care of the logistics, including recruitment, credentials verification, licensing, immigration and 25 relocation. Although Global Nurse Force operates in various countries, its business model for its 26
27
28

1 U.S. operations relies on the H-1B system and the ability of U.S. healthcare facilities to sponsor
2 nurses for H-1B visas.

3 21. Plaintiff International Union, United Automobile, Aerospace And
4 Agricultural Implement Workers of America Local 4811 (“UAW Local 4811”) is a labor
5 union headquartered in Berkeley, California that, jointly with the UAW International, is the 6 exclusive collective bargaining representative for 48,000 workers at the University of California
7 (“UC”) across three distinct bargaining units and has a membership comprised of graduate
8 student employees and non-student academic employees at UC. The Academic Student
9 Employees unit, represented by UAW International and Local 4811, consists of over 36,000 UC
10 employees working in positions such as graduate student researcher, teaching assistant, reader,
11 and tutor. The Postdoctoral Scholars unit represented by UAW International and UAW Local 12 4811 consists of over 7,000 UC non-student employees working as postdoctoral scholars, who 13 are early career scientists with doctorate degrees that perform research. The Academic 14 Researchers unit represented by UAW International and UAW Local 4811 consists of over 5,000
15 UC non-student employees working in positions such as researcher, project scientist, specialist, 16 and coordinator of public programs.

17 22. Plaintiff the International Union, United Automobile, Aerospace and 18 Agricultural Implement Workers of America (“UAW International”) is one of the largest 19 and most diverse unions in North America. Headquartered in Detroit, Michigan, the UAW
20 International has members in the United States, Canada, and Puerto Rico, and in virtually every 21 sector of the economy. From its earliest days, the UAW International has been a leader in the 22 struggle to secure economic and social justice for all people. The UAW International has nearly 23 1,000,000 active and retired members and represents approximately 120,000 workers in higher
24
25
26
27
28

1 education—graduate students, postdoctoral scientists, researchers, university staff, and faculty—
2 at institutions across the country including the University of California, California State
3 University, University of Southern California, California Institute of Technology, UC Law San 4 Francisco, California Institute of the Arts, University of Oregon, University of Washington,
5 Washington State University, Columbia University, New York University, Harvard University,
6 University of Pennsylvania, Princeton University, and Johns Hopkins University, among many 7 others.
8

9 23. Plaintiff Service Employees International Union, AFL-CIO Committee of 10 Interns and Residents (“Committee of Interns and Residents, SEIU” or “CIR”) is a local 11 union of the Service Employees International Union, AFL-CIO (“SEIU”). CIR is headquartered
12 in Long Island City, New York, and represents more than 40,000 interns, residents, and fellows
13 in hospitals throughout the United States including California, Delaware, Florida, Idaho, Illinois,
14 Massachusetts, Minnesota, New Jersey, New Mexico, New York, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island,
15 Vermont, Washington, and Washington, D.C. CIR and CIR members are dedicated to improving
16 residency training and education, advancing patient care, and expanding access to healthcare.
17
18

19 24. Plaintiff American Association of University Professors (“AAUP”) is a non-20 profit membership association and labor union of faculty and academic professionals throughout
21 the country. AAUP is headquartered in Washington, D.C. Founded in 1915, the AAUP remains
22 the nation’s leading organization primarily dedicated to protecting academic freedom and shared
23 governance in higher education. The AAUP has approximately 50,000 members on college and 24 university campuses across the country. AAUP’s mission is to advance academic freedom and 25 shared governance of higher education institutions; to define fundamental professional values 26 and standards for higher education; to promote the economic security of faculty, academic 27
28

1 professionals, graduate students, postdoctoral fellows, and all those engaged in teaching and
2 research in higher education; to help the higher education community organize to make its goals
3 a reality; and to ensure higher education's contribution to the common good. The AAUP has 4 helped to shape American higher education by developing the standards and procedures that 5 maintain quality in education and academic freedom in this country's colleges and universities.
6

7 25. Plaintiff Global Village Academy Collaborative ("GVAC") is a public, non-
8 profit organization established in 2013, authorized under Colorado statute, and headquartered in 9 Thornton, Colorado. For over a decade, GVAC has operated similar to a school district, 10 providing centralized operational and educational support services to its member schools (the 11 Global Village Academies, or "GVA") and its staff across Colorado. Global Village Academies
12 are tuition-free, public charter schools providing English and second language immersion
13 instruction (K-8) in Spanish, Mandarin Chinese, Russian, or French to its students. There are 14 currently 3 Global Village Academy schools across the cities of Aurora, Thornton, and Parker,
15 Colorado, which currently serve around 2,200 students collectively.
16
17

18 26. Plaintiff Society of the Divine Word—Chicago Province (also known as 19 "Societas Verbi Divina," "SVD," and the "Divine Word Missionaries") is a religious 20 missionary order of Roman Catholic priests and brothers presently serving in almost eighty 21 countries around the world. The Chicago Province—headed by Father Adam Oleszczuk, the 22 Provincial Superior of the province—is a non-profit, tax-exempt organization employing several 23 hundred employees. Because of the diverse communities, cultures, and nationalities that Society
24 of the Divine Word serves, it depends on the availability of H-1B visas for foreign religious 25 workers with specialized skillsets including Polish, Spanish, and Vietnamese language abilities.
26
27
28

1 27. Plaintiff Fathers of St. Charles is a non-profit, tax-exempt religious organization
2 and part of the Congregation of the Missionaries of St. Charles – Scalabrinians, a Roman
3 Catholic international religious community dedicated to serving migrants and refugees of 4 different cultures, religions and ethnicities in thirty-five countries on five continents. The 5 Congregation was founded on November 28, 1887, by Saint John Baptist Scalabrini (1839-
6 1905), the bishop of Piacenza, Italy, who at that time recognized the far-reaching social and 7 religious implications of the massive emigration from Europe toward the Americas occurring at 8 that time. Fathers of St. Charles, whose province (the St. John the Baptist Province) covers the 9 United States, Canada, Mexico, Guatemala, and El Salvador, keeps its provincial office in Oak
10 Park, Illinois, and has been serving migrants for well over a century. It is a non-profit, tax-
11 exempt religious organization that employs approximately thirty-five people in the United States.
12 Fathers of St. Charles’ missionary focus for the last twenty-five years has been to be in mission
13 with migrants, with a focus on the very poorest migrants. This mission compels Fathers of St.
14 Charles to provide all pastoral activities, including sacramental and liturgical activities, Bible 15 study, and formation, in the native languages of the people they serve.
16
17
18

19 28. Plaintiff Church on the Hill d/b/a Algood First Baptist (“Church on the Hill”)
20 is a non-profit 501(c)(3)-approved religious organization. The church was formed seventy years
21 ago, but officially incorporated in its current structure in 2003. It has approximately five
22 employees located in the Appalachia region. In 2021, the church branched out and established a
23 new church congregation, which began with twenty members and has since grown to over 200
24 members. The new church is in a different location and serves an underserved, economically
25 disadvantaged region in Appalachia. Both Church on the Hill and the new church have 26
27
28

1 established ministries for children, youth, families and students, as well as community outreach
2 that meets both practical and spiritual needs.

3 29. Plaintiff John Smith (“Pastor John Smith” or “Pastor Smith”) is a citizen of 4 the United Kingdom who currently lives in the Appalachia region of the United States with his
5 wife and four children. Pastor Smith arrived in the United States in 2022 on an R-1
6 nonimmigrant visa for foreign nationals in religious vocations and is currently working full-time
7 at a church as a pastor in the Appalachia region. His R-1 nonimmigrant visa will expire next
8 year. He has been instrumental in overseeing the expansion of the church’s congregation to a 9 second location, and provides essential pastoral and spiritual services and guidance to the 10 congregation’s members and the local community.
11

12 30. Plaintiff Phoenix Doe is a citizen of India residing in the Northern District of 13 California. She is a postdoctoral researcher at a U.S. university whose cap-exempt H-1B change-
14 of-status petition has been halted due to the $100,000 Requirement, putting at risk her work on 15 detecting and treating blinding conditions and disrupting the laboratory that relies on her.
16

17 31. Defendant Donald J. Trump is the President of the United States and is sued in 18 his official capacity.
19

20 32. Defendant U.S. Department of Homeland Security (“DHS”) is a federal 21 Department headquartered in Washington, D.C. It is responsible for administering immigration
22 law, including H-1B adjudications through USCIS.
23

24 33. Defendant Kristi Noem is the Secretary of Homeland Security and is sued in her 25 official capacity.
26
27
28

1 created a complex, but consistent, visa category to give U.S. employers access to the talent they
2 need from every part of the world for jobs in any field that require at least a bachelor's degree as 3 an entrance requirement.

4
5 42. While many H-1B employers and workers are in the information technology
6 (“IT”) industry, H-1B workers are a diverse group, and do not solely reside in Silicon Valley.
7 There are H-1B employers and workers living across the United States, including Texas, New 8 York, California, Colorado, and Illinois.⁹ They work in religious organizations like churches, rural 9 medical clinics, and local high schools. Some are entrepreneurs while others serve the public or 10 work in non-profits. All pay taxes and bring value to their communities.

11
12 43. As set forth in more detail below, Congress carefully designed the H-1B program
13 to attract highly skilled workers to the United States while also protecting workers already in the 14 United States. For example, Congress set annual limits on the number of H-1B workers and 15 requires that employers pay a mandated prevailing wage and abide by other worker-protection
16 rules. Congress also established detailed filing fee provisions. Congress crafted this framework to 17 balance the interests of workers inside the United States and employers needing to fill vital roles,
18 support innovation, and provide services in communities that would not be possible without H-1B
19 workers.
20

21
22 A. Congress Created the H-1B Visa to Ensure the U.S. Could Attract Necessary
Workers in Specialty Occupations

23 44. The United States offers a range of visa categories that Congress created and 24 spelled out in the INA. H-1B visas are awarded to individuals who are sponsored by employers
25 to work temporarily in qualified specialty occupations. See 8 U.S.C. § 1101(a)(15)(H)(i)(b).
26

27
28 ⁹ See, e.g., Carolyn Im, et al., What we know about the U.S. H-1B visa program, Pew Research Center (Mar. 4, 2025), <https://perma.cc/GCE3-3AG7>.

1 Typically, they are initially granted for three years and can be extended to six years. 8 U.S.C.
2 § 1184(g)(4), 8 C.F.R. § 214.2(h)(13)(iii)(A).

3 45. A “specialty occupation” is an occupation that “requires theoretical and
4 practical application of a body of highly specialized knowledge in fields of human endeavor.” 8
5 C.F.R. § 214.2(h)(4)(ii). These fields include, but are not limited to, “architecture, engineering,
6 mathematics, physical sciences, social sciences, medicine and health, education, business
7 specialties, accounting, law, theology, and the arts.” Id.; see also 8 U.S.C. § 1184(i)(1). To 8 qualify as a “specialty occupation,” the occupation must require a bachelor’s or higher degree in 9 a directly related specific specialty, as a minimum for entry. 8 U.S.C. § 1184(i)(1); 8 C.F.R.
10 § 214.2(h)(4)(ii). A medical doctor, for example, is a specialty occupation because generally one
11 must obtain a medical degree to work as a doctor.
12
13

14 B. In Designing the H-1B Program, Congress Included Protections for U.S. Workers

15 46. Congress has highly regulated the H-1B visa category, particularly since 2000, to 16 ensure that the United States enjoys the benefits of bringing in highly-skilled workers from 17 abroad while ensuring that all workers—both workers coming to the U.S. and workers already in 18 the U.S.—are protected from depressed wages and exploitation.
19

20 47. For example, Congress sets numerical limits on the annual number of H-1B
21 workers, except for those employed by higher education or research institutions, who are exempt
22 from the statutory “cap” on the number of visas available per fiscal year. 8 U.S.C.
23 § 1184(g)(1)(A), (5). The statutory cap is 65,000, plus an additional 20,000 available only for 24 individuals who have earned a master’s or higher degree from a United States institution of 25 higher learning. Id. § 1184(g)(1)(A)(vii), (5)(C).
26
27
28

1 48. Congress also requires that the employer pay the H-1B worker the higher of:
2 (1) the actual wage the employer already pays to similar workers in that occupation; or (2) the
3 prevailing wage for the occupation in the geographic area of intended employment. 8 U.S.C.
4 § 1182(t)(1)(A)(i); 20 C.F.R. § 655.731(a). This prevailing wage requirement is designed to 5 ensure that employers cannot undercut the U.S. labor market by hiring H-1B workers and paying
6 them lower wages than those typical for their job in the U.S. labor market.
7

8 49. The employment of the H-1B worker also cannot adversely affect the working
9 conditions of similarly employed workers, and the Department of Labor (“DOL”) must certify
10 that there is no such adverse impact. 8 U.S.C. § 1101(a)(15)(H)(i)(b), 1182(t)(1)(A)(ii).
11 Likewise, an employer may not bring in H-1B workers to work during a strike or lockout. 8
12 U.S.C. § 1182(t)(1)(C); 20 C.F.R. § 655.733.
13

14 50. Employers may not discriminate against U.S. citizens based on citizenship status.
15 See 8 U.S.C. § 1324b(a)(1).
16

17 51. Another safeguard is the anti-displacement provision that applies to employers
18 considered “H-1B dependent”¹⁰ and those considered “willful violators” of employment
19 protections.¹¹ Such employers must attest that the employment of a U.S. worker will not result in 20

21 ¹⁰ The statute and corresponding regulations include a very specific definition of H-1B
22 dependence: an employer that has 25 or fewer full-time equivalent employees and employs more
23 than 7 H-1B workers; or an employer that has 26 to 50 full-time equivalent employees and 24 employs more than 12 H-1B workers; or 51 or more full-time equivalent employees and at least 25 15 percent of its workforce are H-1B workers. See 8 U.S.C. § 1182(n)(3)(A); 20 C.F.R.
26 § 655.736(a).

27 ¹¹ An employer is classified as a willful violator if, during the preceding five years, the Secretary
28 of Labor has found, after notice and opportunity for a hearing, that the employer has committed either: willful failure to meet the conditions of the Labor Condition Application; or a willful misrepresentation of a material fact in the LCA. 8 U.S.C. § 1182(n)(1)(E)(ii); 20 C.F.R.
§ 655.736(f).

1 the displacement of a U.S. worker either 90 days before, or 90 days after, the filing of such a
2 petition. An employer placing an H-1B worker at a third-party worksite must attest that it has
3 made a good faith effort to determine that the employee’s placement will not displace a U.S.
4 worker. 8 U.S.C. § 1182(n)(1)(E)-(F); 20 C.F.R. § 655.738(c)-(d).

5
6 52. When an employer misuses the H-1B program, it can face orders to pay back
7 wages, civil monetary fines, and debarment, among other penalties. 8 U.S.C. § 1182(n)(2); 20
8 C.F.R. § 655.810. A debarred employer is prohibited from receiving approval for future H-1B
9 petitions and other employment-based visa petitions. 8 U.S.C. § 1182(n)(2)(C); 20 C.F.R.
10 § 655.810(d). This penalty is intended to protect both American and foreign workers from 11 exploitation and unlawful practices.
12

13 C. Congress Created a Detailed Statutory Scheme to Govern the H-1B Process That 14 Balances Private and Public Sector Needs

15 1. H-1B Registration and Lottery for Cap-Subject H-1B Visas

16 53. As discussed above, the INA sets a statutory “cap” on the number of new H-1B
17 petitions each fiscal year. “Cap-subject” employers generally are for-profit companies in the 18 private sector.

19 54. To petition for H-1B status for a worker, cap-subject employers must first register
20 the prospective employees in an annual lottery that is generally held in March of each year for 21 employment starting at the beginning of the federal fiscal year in October. 8 C.F.R.
22 § 214.2(h)(8)(iii).
23

24 55. After the close of the registration period, USCIS performs a computer-generated
25 lottery selection. Id. § 214.2(h)(8)(iii)(A)(5)(ii), (6)(ii).
26
27
28

1 56. USCIS then notifies those petitioners whose registrations were selected that they
2 are eligible to file a H-1B cap-subject petition and sends them filing instructions. Id.

3 § 214.2(h)(8)(iii)(C). The selected petitioners may then file a petition. Id. § 214.2(h)(8)(iii)(D).
4

5 2. Cap-Exempt H-1B Visas

6 57. Certain types of employers are “cap-exempt,” meaning they are not subject to the 7 numeric cap specified in the statute. Institutions of higher education, non-profit organizations
8 (e.g., certain hospitals, K-12 schools) affiliated with institutions of higher education, non-profit
9 research organizations, and government research organizations are not subject to the annual 10 numerical limitations. 8 U.S.C. § 1184(g)(5)(A)-(B); 8 C.F.R. § 214.2(h)(8)(iii)(F)(1), (2) and 11 (3).
12

13 58. Cap-exempt employers do not need to register or to participate in the annual 14 lottery, but they do need to establish, to the satisfaction of USCIS, their cap-exempt status. They 15 can file petitions directly and are not limited to filing on a particular cycle.
16

17 3. H-1B Petition Process

18 59. Whether “cap-subject” or “cap exempt,” an employer must petition for an H-1B
19 employee by first submitting a Labor Condition Application (“LCA”) to DOL. See 8 U.S.C.
20 § 1182(n)(1); 20 C.F.R. § 655.730.
21

22 60. In the LCA, the employer attests that it will follow the wage and working 23 condition requirements. See 20 C.F.R. § 655.730(d). DOL then reviews these forms and must 24 certify them. DOL typically does so in seven working days. 20 C.F.R. § 655.730(b).

25 61. Once DOL certifies the LCA, the employer files a Form I-129 petition with 26 USCIS to classify the foreign worker as an H-1B nonimmigrant. See 6 U.S.C. § 271(b)(5); 8
27 U.S.C. § 1184(c)(1); 8 C.F.R. §§ 103.2(a)(1), 214.2(h)(1)(i), (2)(i)(A).
28

1 62. An employer can petition on behalf of workers who are physically located inside
2 or outside of the United States. See ITServe All., Inc. v. United States, 122 F.4th 1364, 1366 (Fed.
3 Cir. 2024); see also 8 U.S.C. § 1258(a); 8 C.F.R. § 248.1(a), (c). The individual may already be
4 in the United States if, for example, their employer is petitioning to change their status from
5 another immigration status to H-1B visa status. For example, many of the Plaintiff Unions'
6 members are currently in the United States in lawful student or exchange status, including on F-1
7 visas, F-1 OPT, STEM OPT, or J-1 programs, and—until the Proclamation—expected that a
8 current or prospective employer would be able to file H-1B petitions on their behalf, either to 9 change their status within the United States or through consular processing abroad.
10

11 4. Visa Issuance and Entry

12 63. Once USCIS approves an H-1B petition, if the worker is outside the United
13 States, the worker generally must then obtain an H-1B visa from a United States consulate
14 abroad before traveling to the United States. ITServe, 122 F.4th at 1367. Even some workers who 15 are inside the United States when their H-1B petition is approved, depending on the specific case 16 circumstances, may have to go abroad to receive consular processing in order to effectuate their 17 H-1B status. The individual may then travel to a port of entry for inspection by CBP and, if 18 authorized, be admitted in H-1B nonimmigrant status and enter the United States. See 8 U.S.C.
19 §§ 1101(a)(13)(A), 1184(a)(1), 1225(a)(1); 8 C.F.R. § 212.1(a)(1).
20

21 64. Workers who are able to change to H-1B status from within the United States may 22 still need to travel abroad for work, for family emergencies, or to renew a passport. These 23 workers typically must obtain an H-1B visa stamp at a U.S. consulate abroad before reentering. 8
24 U.S.C. § 1184(a).
25
26
27
28

1 65. Once an H-1B worker is in the United States, employers may need to file
2 additional petitions with USCIS if there is a material change in the worker’s employment
3 conditions, such as a change in worksite, or if the worker changes employers. 8 C.F.R.
4 § 214.2(h)(2)(i)(D)-(E), 8 C.F.R. § 274a.12(b)(9). As the initial three-year work authorization
5 period expires, employers can petition for an extension of another three years, and additional
6 extensions are possible, beyond the 6 years, under limited circumstances. 8 CFR
7 § 214.2(h)(13)(iii)(D).

8
9 D. Congress Established a Detailed Fee System for H-1Bs That Sets Parameters on 10 Fees and Dictates Their Use

11 66. Congress has established a clear framework for fees charged to H-1B petitioning
12 employers. These include the adjudication fees that USCIS sets by regulation, as authorized by 8
13 U.S.C. § 1356(m), and certain statutory fees charged to certain H-1B employers, authorized in 8
14 U.S.C. § 1184(c)(9)-(14). Required fees must be paid by H-1B employers, not by the H-1B
15 workers or their families. See 20 C.F.R. § 655.731(c)(9)(iii)(C)(10).

16
17 67. DHS may charge fees for adjudication of petitions under 8 U.S.C. § 1356(m), but 18 Congress limited those fees. The statute provides that “fees for providing adjudication and 19 naturalization services may be set at a level that will ensure recovery of the full costs of 20 providing all such services, including the costs of similar services provided without charge to 21 asylum applicants or other immigrants. Such fees may also be set at a level that will recover any 22 additional costs associated with the administration of the fees collected.” Id.

23
24 68. DHS sets the amounts of adjudication fees through notice-and-comment
25 rulemaking. See, e.g., USCIS Fee Schedule and Changes to Certain Other Immigration Benefit
26 Request Requirements, 89 Fed. Reg. 6,194 (Jan. 31, 2024). Under the latest 2024 rule, for 27 instance, H-1B employers must pay a fee to register for the lottery, a fee to file Form I-129, and 28

1 an “asylum program fee,” meant to subsidize USCIS’s costs for processing asylum applications.
2 8 C.F.R. § 106.2(a)(3), (c)(11), (c)(13). At full price, these fees for adjudication total $1,595. Id.

3 69. Because DHS has historically factored in an employer’s ability to pay, the 4 adjudication fees are discounted for small employers (25 or fewer full-time employees) and non-
5 profits. See id. § 106.2(a)(3), (c)(13).

7 70. Congress, through the INA, set additional mandatory statutory fees to be paid by 8 employers:

- 9 a. An American Competitiveness and Workforce Improvement Act of 1998
10 (“ACWIA”) fee of $1,500. The statute effectively requires consideration
11 of ability to pay; there is a discount for employers with 25 or fewer 12 employees, who pay $750, and cap-exempt employers are exempt. The 13 ACWIA fee is required only for the first two petitions filed on behalf of 14 each individual. See 8 U.S.C. § 1184(c)(9)-(14).
15
16 b. A fraud prevention and detection fee of $500. The fraud fee is required
17 with initial petitions and petitions to change employers. Id.; see 8 U.S.C.
18 § 1184(c)(12)(A)(i)-(ii).
19

20 71. Congress spoke clearly as to where these fees should go and for what purpose.
21 For example, in establishing the ACWIA fee, Congress intended to support the American labor 22 market by upskilling its workforce to “address a growing shortage of skilled worked for certain 23 high technology positions important to American business.” 144 Cong. Rec. S10877 (daily ed.
24 Sept. 24, 1998). The INA directs that ACWIA fees be segregated into a special account and used
25 for specified purposes. See 8 U.S.C. § 1356(s). The revenue is primarily split among: (1) DOL
26 workforce training programs (50%), (2) National Science Foundation low-income STEM
27
28

1 scholarships (30%), and (3) National Science Foundation K-12 stem initiatives (10%). 8 U.S.C.
2 § 1356(s)(2)-(4).

3 72. The fraud prevention and detection fee's name indicates its purpose. The revenue
4 is split equally among the three agencies responsible for administering the H-1B program: DOL
5 (who oversees the Labor Condition Application and wage payment to the H-1B worker), DHS
6 (who adjudicates requests for H-1B status), and the State Department (who decides whether to 7 issue visas). 8 U.S.C. § 1356(v)(2)(A)-(C).

8 73. Additionally, certain employers pay enhanced fees. For example, currently, a
9 "50/50 employer" must pay an additional "Public Law 114-113 Fee" of $4,000. 8 C.F.R.
10 § 106.2(c)(8); USCIS, H and L Filing Fees for Form I-129.¹² A "50/50 employer" is an entity
11 that employs over 50 employees with over half comprising nonimmigrant workers in H-1B or L-
12 1 status.¹³ ITServe, 122 F.4th at 1367 n.2; 8 C.F.R. § 106.2(c)(8).

13 74. An employer that pays the full amount of these regulatory and statutory fees
14 would pay a total of $7,595, nowhere near the $100,000 Defendants now demand.

15 75. The $100,000 Requirement does not account for ability to pay, unlike many of the 16 regulatory and statutory fees, which are discounted for small employers and non-profits.

17
18 E. The President's Ability to Restrict Entry Under the INA Does Not Authorize Him to 19 Override Congress's Comprehensive H-1B Statute

20 76. The Proclamation invokes two provisions of the INA: sections 212(f) and 215(a), 21 8 U.S.C. §§ 1182(f) and 1185.

22
23
24
25

¹² See USCIS, H and L Filing Fees for Form I-129, Petition for a Nonimmigrant
26 Worker, <https://perma.cc/5RRV-26DG>.

27 ¹³ The L-1 visa "allows multinational corporations to sponsor visas for temporary intra-company
28 knowledge capacity. Nat'l Ass'n of Manufacturers v. DHS, 491 F. Supp. 3d 549, 556 (N.D. Cal.
2020); 8 U.S.C. § 1101(a)(15)(L).

1 77. Section 212(f) of the INA, 8 U.S.C. § 1182(f), provides:

2 Whenever the President finds that the entry of any aliens or of any class of aliens
3 into the United States would be detrimental to the interests of the United States, he 4 may by proclamation, and for such period as he shall deem necessary, suspend the 5 entry of all aliens or any class of aliens as immigrants or nonimmigrants, or impose
6 on the entry of aliens any restrictions he may deem to be appropriate.

7 8 U.S.C. § 1182(f).

8 78. This statutory provision is designed to “regulate and influence conduct abroad, 9 rather than at home,” and does not authorize the President to effectuate “domestic policy as 10 opposed to foreign policy or national security.” President & Fellows of Harvard Coll. v. DHS, 11 No. 25-cv-11472, --- F. Supp. 3d. ----, 2025 WL 1737493, at *10 (D. Mass. June 23, 2025). The 12 Proclamation makes clear that it is concerned with domestic policy—charging domestic 13 employers unprecedented fees, changing the conduct of employers and workers inside the United 14 States, and raising revenue for domestic purposes. But 8 U.S.C. § 1182(f) does not permit the 15 President to restrict entry for these purposes.

16 79. In addition, section 215(a), 8 U.S.C. § 1185(a)(1), allows the President to 17 “prescribe” “reasonable rules, regulations, and orders” governing who may “enter . . . the United 18 States.” Id. (emphasis added).

19 80. Nothing in either statute authorizes the President to rewrite Congress’s
20 comprehensive H-1B statute by denying entry to all H-1B workers unless an employer pays
21 $100,000 or is granted an exemption at the discretion of the Secretary of DHS.
22

23 VI. FACTUAL ALLEGATIONS

24 A. The President’s Proclamation

25 81. Late in the day on Friday, September 19, 2025, the White House issued a 26 Presidential Proclamation pursuant to 8 U.S.C. § 1182(f) and § 1185(a) conditioning the 27
28

1 adjudication of H-1B petitions and entry of H-1B beneficiaries into the United States on a
2 $100,000 payment.

3 82. Among other things, the Proclamation requires a $100,000 payment in connection
4 with any H-1B petition for workers currently outside the U.S. seeking entry under the H-1B
5 program, stating: “[e]ntry into the United States of [H-1B workers] is restricted, except for those 6 aliens whose petitions are accompanied or supplemented by a payment of $100,000.”
7 Proclamation § 1(a). The Proclamation directs DHS to “restrict decisions on petitions not
8 accompanied by a $100,000 payment,” id. § 1(b), and directs State to “approve only those visa
9 petitions for which the filing employer has made the [$100,000] payment,” id. § 2(b). DHS and 10 State must “deny entry to the United States to any H-1B nonimmigrant” whose employer has not
11 made the $100,000 payment. Id. § 2(c).

12 83. The Proclamation made these new requirements effective as of 12:01 am ET 13 Sunday, September 21, 2025. But the Proclamation does not specify to which agency the 14 $100,000 “payment” should be made, how it should be paid, where it will be deposited, or how it
15 will be used.

16 84. The President’s key advisor on this Proclamation appears to be Howard Lutnick,
17 who outlined the scope and rationale of the Proclamation when it was issued. Speaking alongside
18 the President at an Oval Office ceremony unveiling the Proclamation on September 19, Lutnick
19 said: “a hundred-thousand dollars a year for H-1B visas, and all of the big companies are on 20 board. We’ve spoken to them.”

21 85. Lutnick also stated that current visa-holders would be subject to the fee and would 22 have to leave the country if it was not paid: “Either the person is very valuable to the company
23 and America, or they are going to depart and the company is going to hire an American,” Lutnick
24

1 said at the briefing. “And that’s the point of immigration. Hire Americans and make sure the
2 people coming in are the top, top people. Stop the nonsense.”¹⁴

3 86. Lutnick also made clear that the fee would be charged annually: “The company
4 needs to decide . . . is the person valuable enough to have a $100,000-a-year payment to the 5 government, or they should head home, and they should go hire an American.”¹⁵

7 1. The Proclamation is Based on Multiple Errors of Fact and Ignores the 8 Benefits of the H-1B Program to the American Economy

9 87. The Proclamation’s preamble solely identifies concerns with the program’s use in 10 the information technology fields, but employers seek and obtain H-1B visas for workers in a
11 wide range of specialty occupations, including healthcare workers, researchers, clergy, university
12 professors, K-12 teachers, and more. The Proclamation does not identify widespread fraud and 13 misuse of the program in those fields nor otherwise justify why a market-wide penalty is an 14 appropriate remedy.

15 88. Even as to the IT industry, the Proclamation ignores pertinent facts reflecting that 16 the H-1B program supports economic growth. Indeed, from 1990 to 2010, H-1B holders caused
17 30-50 percent of all productivity growth in the U.S. economy.¹⁶ As one economist explained,
18 “workers on H-1B visas cause dynamism and opportunity for natives. They cause more patenting
19 of new inventions, ideas that create new products and even new industries. They cause
20 entrepreneurs to found more (and more successful) high-growth startup firms. The resulting 21 productivity growth causes more higher-paying jobs for native workers, both with and without a
22
23
24
25

26 ¹⁴ Trump unveils $100K yearly fee on H-1B visas in clampdown on legal immigration, Wash.
27 Post (Sept. 19, 2025), <https://perma.cc/N7PP-Y53G>.

28 ¹⁵ Id.

¹⁶ Giovanni Peri, Kevin Shih & Chad Sparber, STEM Workers, H-1B Visas, and Productivity in US Cities, 33 J. Lab. Econ. S1(2) S225, S250-52 (2015), <https://perma.cc/PK6F-KN6K>.

1 college education, across all sectors. American firms able to hire more H-1B workers grow more,
2 generating far more jobs inside and outside the firm than the foreign workers take.”¹⁷

3 89. The Proclamation also ignores other benefits of bringing H-1B workers to the 4 United States, where they consume goods and services and pay taxes in the United States.
5 Cutting off employers’ ability to employ H-1B workers will likely push some employers to 6 outsource their work to other countries.
7

8 90. The Proclamation claims, without evidence or explication, that abuses of the H-
9 1B program are so serious as to be a threat to national security. But the government’s own
10 enforcement reflects otherwise: DOL is charged with investigating fraud and abuse of the Labor
11 Condition Application portion of the H-1B program and maintains a database of companies that 12 abused the H-1B program and were banned from it. See 8 U.S.C. § 1182(n)(2), 20 C.F.R.
13 655.800 et seq.; H-1B Willful Violator List of Employers, U.S. Dep’t Lab., 14 <https://perma.cc/4RPD-X7JT> (effective as of Sept. 1, 2025). There are just eight companies on 15 this list and only two were added in 2025, while tens of thousands of employers have used this 16 program in recent years.
17
18

19 2. The Proclamation’s Exorbitant $100,000 Fee Is Unprecedented and 20 Unjustified, and the Exception Process is Ripe for Abuse

21 91. The Proclamation’s imposition of a draconian fee is unprecedented. No President
22 has, without Congressional authorization and by fiat, imposed a market-wide penalty for 23 purported misuse of a program—disregarding and overriding an existing, complex statutory 24 scheme—on employers seeking to hire workers under a visa program Congress created
25
26
27

28 ¹⁷ Michael A. Clemens, New US curb on high-skill immigrant workers ignores evidence of its likely harms, Peterson Inst.Int’l Econ. (Sept. 22, 2025), <https://perma.cc/Y4DL-VSRQ>.

1 specifically for that purpose. Nor may Presidents impose a tax or other general revenue-
2 generating requirement without Congressional authorization.

3 92. Here, the President appears determined to raise general revenue using the 4 $100,000 Requirement, suggesting that this is a tax, not a fee for use of the program. While
5 announcing the Proclamation, the President alluded to the ultimate use of the revenue generated
6 from these $100,000 payments: “The main thing is we’re going to have great people coming in 7 and they’re going to be paying. We’re going to take that money and we’re going to be reducing 8 taxes and we’re going to be reducing debt.”¹⁸

9
10 93. The Proclamation also provides an exception to the payment requirement in 11 section (c), which states that “[t]he restriction imposed pursuant to subsections (a) and (b) of this
12 section shall not apply to any individual alien, all aliens working for a company, or all aliens
13 working in an industry, if the Secretary of Homeland Security determines, in the Secretary’s
14 discretion, that the hiring of such aliens to be employed as H-1B specialty occupation workers is 15 in the national interest and does not pose a threat to the security or welfare of the United States.”

16
17 94. The Proclamation includes no guidance, direction, or parameters for this 18 purported national interest exception, which was created from whole cloth. As drafted, the 19 standardless exception process is an open invitation for selective and arbitrary treatment. It 20 invites lobbying; it permits favoritism, ideologically based bias, and corruption.

21
22
23 3. After the Ill-Planned Proclamation Caused Immediate Harm, the Government Began to Backtrack

24 95. Shortly after this announcement, current H-1B workers that were outside the 25 country started receiving urgent messages from their employers to return to the United States
26

27
28

¹⁸ Trump unveils $100K yearly fee on H-1B visas in clampdown on legal immigration, supra, note 14.

1 before the Proclamation became effective at 12:01 am ET on Sunday, September 21. Many were
2 advised to remain in the United States until further notice.¹⁹ Some workers spent thousands of
3 dollars on return travel to the United States.²⁰ Others cancelled planned trips, and some workers
4 who had already boarded flights made panicked requests to deplane after receiving news of the 5 Proclamation.²¹

7 96. As this chaos unfolded on Saturday, September 20, the Administration began to 8 backtrack. An unnamed White House source, speaking on condition of anonymity to the press,
9 contradicted Lutnick's statements from the Oval Office and stated that the new requirement was
10 a "one-time fee" and "currently does not apply to renewals but that policy is under discussion."²²
11 The source did not say whether existing visa-holders would be prevented from returning to the 12 country, under the Proclamation's language broadly barring entry of individuals for whom the fee
13 had not been paid.
14
15
16
17
18 19 20
21
22
23

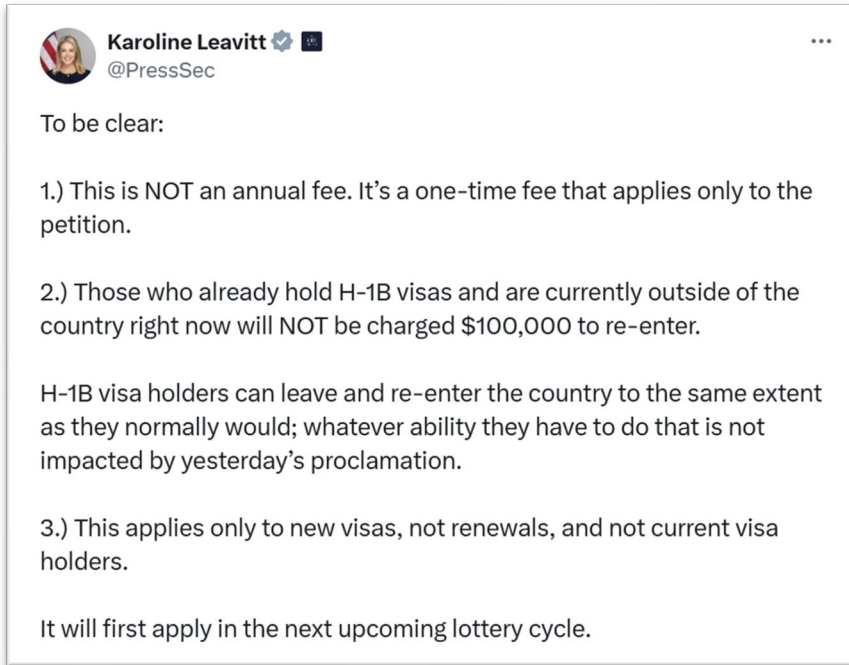

24 ¹⁹ Madeleine Ngo, Lauren Hirsch & Pranav Baskar, Trump's $100,000 Visa Fee Spurs Confusion
25 and Chaos, N.Y. Times (Sept. 22, 2025), <https://perma.cc/EJ5T-RK6F>.

26 ²⁰ Emma Rossiter & Ishadrita Lahiri, I spent $8,000 to get back to US after fears over Trump visa
27 deadline, BBC (Sept. 20, 2025), <https://perma.cc/3NHM-JD39>.

28 ²¹ Aditya Soni & Echo Wang, 'Fast and furious': H-1B workers abroad race to US as Trump order sparks dismay, confusion, Reuters (Sept. 21, 2025), <https://perma.cc/J82X-GHGH>.

²² White House clarifies $100K H-1B visa fee won't apply to existing holders as Trump stirs anxiety, PBS News (Sept. 21, 2025), <https://perma.cc/SN9S-435A>.

1 97. At 4:16 pm ET on Saturday, September 20, White House Press Secretary Karoline
2 Leavitt posted another attempt at re-writing the Proclamation on the social media platform X:²³
3

16 B. The Agency Defendants Imposed a $100,000 Requirement for “Any” New H-1B
17 Petitions.

18 98. The Proclamation tasked DHS, including its component agencies USCIS and 19 CBP, and the State Department (collectively with the heads of those agencies and components, 20 the “Agency Defendants”) with the implementation of its requirements.

21 99. The Agency Defendants issued a series of public statements in the hours and days
22 following the Proclamation’s late Friday issuance.²⁴
23
24

25 ²³ Karoline Leavitt (@PressSec), X (Sept. 20, 2025, 4:16 PM), <https://perma.cc/Y7WY-NHN9?type=image>.

26 ²⁴ Joseph B. Edlow, Proclamation, Restriction on Entry of Certain Nonimmigrant Workers, H-
27 1B, USCIS (Sept. 20, 2025), <https://perma.cc/U54U-4UWD>; Matthew S. Davies, Proclamation,
28 Restriction on Entry of Certain Nonimmigrant Workers [H-1B], USCBP (Sept. 20, 2025),
<https://perma.cc/K9VG-QCYS>; H-1B FAQ, U.S. Dep’t State (Sept. 21, 2025),
<https://perma.cc/6DYF-9SCE>; H-1B FAQ, White House (Sept. 21, 2025),

1 100. Collectively, these documents reflect the new policies the Agency Defendants
2 have adopted to implement the Proclamation.

3 101. The Agency Defendants require a one-time payment of $100,000 “on submission”
4 of “any” new H-1B petition filed after 12:01 am ET on September 21, 2025. Payment is a
5 condition for adjudication of “any” new H-1B petition, as well as for consular processing and 6 entry into the United States of any beneficiary of a new petition (the “Agency Policies”).
7

8 102. The Agency Policies are in some ways narrower than the Proclamation. They 9 specify, for example, that the $100,000 Requirement only applies to new petitions and not to 10 “renewals”²⁵—a term that is not used in the existing statutory and regulatory scheme. The 11 Agencies have also chosen not to condition entry into the United States on receipt of the 12 $100,000 payment for existing H-1B visa holders or beneficiaries of petitions submitted before
13 the effective date.²⁶
14

15 103. However, the new Agency Policies sweep more broadly than the Proclamation in 16 that they appear to apply to any new H-1B petition submitted on or after September 21, 2025.
17 They do not clearly differentiate between petitions for workers who are “currently outside the 18 United States” and those for workers who are already inside the United States. This means that 19 the $100,000 Requirement applies even where workers are already lawfully present in the United 20 States under, for example, a student visa or another immigration status, and are seeking to 21 change to H-1B status.
22
23
24
25

26 _____
27 <https://perma.cc/G37A-W3AK>; H-1B FAQ, USCIS (Sept. 21, 2025), <https://perma.cc/R8CD-CK2A>.

28 ²⁵ H-1B FAQ, USCIS (Sept. 21, 2025), <https://perma.cc/R8CD-CK2A>.

²⁶ Id.

1 C. The Proclamation and Agency Policies Will Harm Plaintiffs and the Public Interest

2 104. The Proclamation and new Agency Policies harm both Plaintiffs and the broader 3 public.

4 1. Health care

5 105. For over a decade, Plaintiff Global Nurse Force, a California limited liability
6 company, has connected healthcare systems across the globe with highly skilled and experienced
7 nurses to ensure their staffing needs are met. Global Nurse Force has placed over 10,000 nurses
8 at leading hospitals around the world. In the United States, Global Nurse Force’s clients include
9 healthcare systems in Washington, Ohio, Louisiana, California and the District of Columbia who 10 have used Global Nurse Force’s “direct hire” model to hire hundreds of nurses on H-1B visas to 11 fill critical staffing shortages.
12

13 106. The United States has been suffering from a nursing shortage for decades, and this
14 shortage will only intensify as the Baby Boomer generation ages and their need for health care
15 grows. The COVID-19 pandemic drove many nurses out of the profession; nursing schools
16 suffer from a faculty shortage as well as depressed enrollment; and insufficient staffing itself
17 raises the stress level of nurses, has a negative impact on their job satisfaction, and motivates
18 many nurses to retire or otherwise leave the profession. Inadequate levels of nurse staffing lead
19 to errors and increased mortality rates, a decrease in the quality of patient care, and unit or full 20 hospital closures, especially in rural areas.
21

22 107. Global Nurse Force offers a direct hire model to U.S.-based healthcare systems
23 that allows these healthcare systems to hire the experienced and specialized nurses they need by 24 sponsoring them for H-1B specialty worker visas. Global Nurse Force provides “end to end”
25 services that include facilitating the employer’s interview and selection process, which usually 26
27
28

1 involves preliminary online interviews followed by international travel that allows the employer
2 to meet, interview, and select in person the nurses needed; providing support for the H-1B
3 application process; and providing logistical travel support for the hired nurses, including 4 arranging travel, airport pickup, and temporary housing for nurses and their families arriving in
5 the United States. Directly hiring skilled nurses on H-1B visas allows healthcare systems to meet
6 their staffing needs without relying on short-term hiring of so-called “travel nurses,” which is a 7 far more expensive staffing solution that, in a year, can cost healthcare systems millions of 8 dollars more in fees paid to staffing providers.
9

10
11 108. Global Nurse Force’s business model for its U.S. clients is entirely based on the 12 H-1B visa system and the ability of healthcare facilities to sponsor for H-1B visas the specialized
13 nurses they need. As a result, the harmful impact of the Proclamation and the $100,000
14 Requirement on Global Nurse Force and its healthcare system clientele has been immediate. A
15 health system in Louisiana, for example, recently went through the interview and selection
16 process with Global Nurse Force and selected over two hundred nurses. When the Proclamation
17 was issued, Global Nurse Force was in the process of assisting the hospital with preparing the H-
18 1B applications for these nurses to be filed over the next two quarters. But that healthcare
19 system, like most of Global Nurse Force’s clients, cannot afford to pay an additional $100,000
20 fee for each nurse, and the healthcare system is now at a loss for how to fill the staffing shortages
21 that are affecting its patients now. Indeed, many of Global Nurse Force’s clients hire over a
22 hundred nurses through each interview and selection cycle, which would translate into millions
23 of dollars in extra fees required by the Proclamation. Many of Global Nurse Force’s clients are 24 non-profit hospitals operating on thin margins and cannot absorb the $100,000 fee per nurse. If 25
26
27
28

1 required to pay this fee, they will be forced to cancel international recruitment, leaving their
2 positions unfilled.

3 109. If the $100,000 Requirement remains in effect, it would force Global Nurse Force
4 to close its U.S.-based operations, which would translate into a loss of millions of dollars in
5 revenue. Without access to international nurses, their clients will be forced to reduce capacity in 6 ICUs, emergency rooms and surgical units. Wait times will increase and patient outcomes will
7 worsen. This proclamation directly threatens Global Nurse Force's operations and forces
8 hospitals towards staffing models that are significantly more expensive – raising healthcare costs
9 rather than reducing them, so that the ultimate victims are patients, especially in rural and inner-
10 city communities.
11

12 110. Plaintiff CIR, whose membership consists of medical interns, residents, and 13 fellows, has numerous members who plan to seek H-1B visas and who have applications for H-
14 1B visas pending with their employers and may lose their ability to live and work in the United 15 States as a result of the Proclamation.
16

17 111. For example, a Pakistani physician and member of CIR is currently completing a 18 fellowship in palliative care at a hospital that is part of an academic health care system on the 19 East Coast. The physician is married and has a two-year-old son who is a U.S. citizen. As our 20 population ages, the United States is facing an acute shortage of palliative care doctors, who 21 provide end of life care; his expertise is therefore particularly valuable.
22

23 112. This CIR member holds a J1 visa. Foreign physicians come to the United States
24 on J1 visas to complete their medical training. Generally, J1 visa holders must return to their 25 country for two years at the end of their training, unless they obtain a waiver of this requirement.
26 Foreign physicians generally apply for a waiver program, which allows them to change their 27
28

1 immigration status from a J1 visa to an H-1B visa while remaining in the United States, if they
2 commit to practicing in communities with the greatest need. The United States provides these 3 waiver programs as a way to help address severe physician shortages in underserved areas.
4

5 113. This CIR member is currently applying and interviewing with facilities located in 6 federally-designated Health Professional Shortage Areas and Medically Underserved Areas, the 7 first step toward securing the employment offer needed to apply for a waiver. Because of the new 8 $100,000 Requirement, however, employers who would normally petition for an H-1B visa on 9 his behalf are unable to do so. If the physician is unable to secure a position with H-1B visa (as is 10 likely), his years of training and his specialization will be for naught, and the United States will 11 lose a physician trained in a critical field who is ready to serve in precisely the communities that 12 need him most. He will be forced to return to Pakistan, where he is unlikely to find employment 13 adequate to support himself and his family.
14

15 114. A Canadian CIR member is in his third year of a residency program in internal 16 medicine in a city on the East Coast. Like many foreign physicians, he is training in the United 17 States on a J1 visa, which requires him to pursue a waiver in order to remain and serve after 18 completing his residency.
19

20 115. This member will complete his residency next year, apply for positions in 21 underserved areas and apply for a waiver. Like many current and former CIR members before
22 him, his prospective employer would then file an H-1B petition on his behalf. The new $100,000
23 Requirement, however, places sponsorship entirely out of reach for the very medical facilities
24 Congress intended to benefit from these programs. If such facilities had the resources to pay this 25 fee, they would not be struggling to recruit physicians through waiver programs in the first place.
26
27
28

1 116. The Proclamation will harm the career prospects and lives of this CIR member
2 and others similarly situated. Since sponsoring organizations are unlikely to be able to afford to
3 pay $100,000, this member will likely face a two-year separation from his U.S. citizen fiancée
4 and would need to incur costs to get recredentialed as a physician in his home country of Canada.
5 This would set him back 1-2 years professionally.
6

7 117. The loss of these medical workers will harm communities around the United 8 States. The American Medical Association (“AMA”) has expressed grave concerns about the 9 impact of the $100,000 Requirement on the availability and quality of medical care in the United
10 States. In a September 25, 2025, letter to DHS Secretary Kristi Noem urging DHS to exempt
11 foreign-trained physicians from the fee, the AMA, along with more than 50 national specialty
12 societies and state medical associations, noted that the United States is projecting a shortfall of 13 86,000 physicians by 2036.²⁷ This is especially concerning because America’s population is 14 aging, and there will not be enough doctors to care for older adults, many of whom suffer
15 increased rates of chronic disease and have other complex medical needs.²⁸ Noting that of the 16 23% of physicians in the United States who are foreign trained, 65% practice in Medically
17 Underserved Areas or Health Professional Shortage Areas and of those, 46% practice in rural 18 areas, the letter explains that the fee endangers access to quality care for some of the Americans
19 who most need it.²⁹
20
21
22

23 118. Many of the hospitals that hire foreign trained physicians are non-profits and will
24 not be able to afford this fee. As the President of the AMA explained, “[i]f a hospital needs 50
25

26
27 ²⁷ Letter to Kristi Noem from National Medical Societies and State Medical Associations (Sept.
28 25, 2025), <https://perma.cc/2VP2-B6Q5>.

²⁸ Id.

²⁹ Id.

1 foreign residents, and it's $100,000 each for each one, that's $5 million, and that's not going to
2 happen There will be shortages." The consequences, he explained, are that "spots at
3 hospitals will not be filled. Wait times will go up, and people will wait even longer at emergency
4 departments." The fee, coupled with cuts in health insurance subsidies and reduced Medicaid
5 payments, will exacerbate the financial stress many hospitals are already experiencing.³⁰
6

7 119. A 2023 study by the National Bureau of Economic Research found that foreign-
8 born doctors help serve rural and low-income communities without reducing the employment of 9 U.S.-trained physicians.³¹ The study notes that while about 20% of the U.S. population lives in 10 rural areas, only about 11% of physicians practice in these locations; and disparities in access to 11 physicians contribute to disparities in population health.³² After examining the data, the study
12 concluded that foreign-born doctors were not "crowding out" U.S. born physicians, but rather 13 that foreign-born physicians were filling essential gaps in coverage, particularly in rural areas.³³
14
15

16 2. K-12 school systems

17 120. At a time when communities around the country are facing acute teacher
18 shortages, the $100,000 Requirement means that school districts risk losing valuable teachers in 19 both urban areas suffering from staffing shortages and in rural districts where teachers are 20 difficult to recruit. For example, Texas public schools, which have historically employed more
21 H-1B visa holding teachers than any other state education system, currently employ about 500
22
23
24

25 ³⁰ Roni Caryn Rabin, Medical Groups Warn Against Visa Fees for Foreign Doctors, N.Y. Times
(Sept. 26, 2025), <https://perma.cc/Q243-3LTU>.

26 ³¹ Breno Braga, Gaurav Khanna & Sarah Turner, Migration Policy and the Supply of Foreign 27 Physicians: Evidence from the Conrad 30 Waiver Program, Nat'l Bureau of Econ. Research
Working Paper No. 32005 (Dec. 2023), <https://perma.cc/V8HK-LANH>.

28 ³² Id.

³³ Id. at 3.

1 teachers on H-1B visas.³⁴ The $100,000 Requirement is approximately double the average
2 teacher salary in Texas.³⁵ A spokesperson for the Alief Independent School District (“ISD”),
3 outside Houston, said the $100,000 Requirement “would be a significant financial barrier for 4 public school districts and an unsustainable cost for Alief ISD.”³⁶ Similarly, school officials in
5 North Carolina expressed concern about how the new fee would impact their ability to hire
6 teachers in a state that started the new school year with 2,155 teaching vacancies.³⁷ A
7 spokesperson for a charter school system that operates schools across North Carolina said the 8 $100,000 Requirement “would create a significant barrier for non-profit, tax-exempt, and public
9 institutions such as ours. Simply put, most schools could not sustain such costs.”³⁸ She 10 concluded that “without an exemption, the results could be a severe shortage of qualified 11 teachers at a time when schools nationwide already face staffing challenges.”³⁹ The 12 Superintendent of the Kodiak Island Borough School District in Alaska, which relies on H-1B
13 workers to fill staffing gaps, was more direct, saying “[w]ith a pen stroke, we have possibly 14 ruined the future of education for Alaska students.”⁴⁰

15
16
17
18 121. Plaintiff Global Village Academy Collaborative (“GVAC”) is headquartered in 19 Thornton, Colorado and operates similar to a school district and provides operational and 20 educational services to its member schools (Global Village Academies, or “GVA”), including,
21

22
23 ³⁴ Isaac Yu & Nusaiba Mizan, Hundreds of Texas teachers are on H-1B visas. Could that change
24 after Trump's new $100k fee?, Hous. Chron. (Sept. 25, 2025), <https://perma.cc/ED5L-9U28>.

25 ³⁵ Id.

26 ³⁶ Id.

27 ³⁷ T. Keung Hui & Brian Gordon, New $100,000 fee for H-1B Visas Could Hurt Teacher
28 Recruitment for NC Schools, Herald Sun (Sept. 23, 2025), <https://perma.cc/T3MQ-LYY7>.

³⁸ Id.

³⁹ Id.

⁴⁰ Brian Venua, The White House Upped the Cost of H-1B Visas. Alaska Schools Could Face
Major Consequences, KXMT (Sept. 24, 2025), <https://perma.cc/6LDV-SHD2>.

1 but not limited to, staff recruitment, legal services, human resources, facilities and site support,
2 curriculum and material development, and financial management.

3 122. GVAC’s mission is to provide these essential services to its Global Village
4 Academies to cultivate academic excellence, high levels of linguistic proficiency, and cultural
5 competences in all of its students, starting as early as kindergarten and through the eighth grade,
6 so that these students may achieve a higher level entrance in their language of choice by high
7 school and develop the global perspectives and 21st century skills necessary to live and work
8 with others internationally.
9

10 123. The Global Village Academies are tuition-free, public charter schools (K-8)
11 providing English and second language immersion instruction to about 2,200 students across its 12 schools in Aurora, Thornton, and Parker, Colorado. The Global Village Academies are centered
13 on providing second language instruction in Spanish, Mandarin Chinese, Russian, or French
14 using an immersion model. Parents select the language, or “village,” their child begins learning, 15 and for at least half of their school day, students learn all their core subjects immersed in their 16 chosen language or village and taught by GVA’s world language teachers. For the other half of 17 the day, students receive this instruction in English.
18

19 124. Global Village Academies heavily rely on recruiting and retaining native-speaking
20 world language teachers from all over the globe to provide their students with second language
21 instruction through an immersion model that is consistent with an internationally benchmarked
22 curriculum. GVA world language teachers are highly qualified, experienced teachers with native-
23 language skills who also bring their unique cultural perspectives and competencies from their 24 home countries into the classroom.
25
26
27
28

1 125. Since 2007, GVAC has regularly relied on and engaged in the H-1B visa process
2 by filing H-1B petitions to recruit, hire, and retain world language teachers for its three GVA
3 schools. Each year, GVAC recruits roughly 2-5 new world language teachers, but sometimes
4 more, across their GVA schools. For the current 2025-2026 academic year underway, GVAC
5 sponsored eleven world language teachers through H-1B petitions. Without the H-1B visa
6 system, GVAC would not be able to continue hiring qualified world language teachers to carry
7 out its educational model and provide the level of instruction it has in the past.
8

9 126. The $100,000 Requirement would significantly hinder GVAC's ability to recruit
10 new and qualified teachers for the upcoming academic year, particularly given the challenging
11 teacher recruitment market and the need for world language teachers with both native-language
12 skills and cultural competencies to achieve their mission. Given that GVAC's schools do not
13 charge tuition and have a limited budget, paying $100,000 for each new H-1B petition GVAC
14 anticipates filing for the 2026-2027 academic year would have a significant financial impact on 15 GVAC and its schools. GVAC could not afford to pay upwards of $500,000 or more in H-1B fees
16 to continue hiring qualified world language teachers through H-1B petitions in line with its 17 mission and model. As a result, GVAC would have to take significant, drastic measures to offset 18 such a cost, like cutting down on current staffing or placing a cap on enrollment, which would 19 have a vast impact on GVAC's funding.
20
21

22 127. The $100,000 Requirement would also harm GVAC's programmatic work. If 23 GVAC cannot afford to hire world language teachers through the H-1B visa process, GVAC
24 would be forced to fundamentally change its unique educational model that sets its schools apart
25 for parents and students, undermining GVAC's schools' ability to provide the quality language 26 immersion instruction and cultural competencies they are known for.
27
28

1 3. Religious organizations

2 128. Plaintiff Society of the Divine Word (also known as “Societas Verbi Divina,”
3 “SVD,” and the “Divine Word Missionaries”) is a religious missionary order of Roman Catholic
4 priests and brothers presently serving in almost eighty countries around the world. The Chicago
5 Province—headed by Father Adam Oleszczuk, the Provincial Superior of the Province—is a
6 non-profit, tax-exempt organization employing several hundred employees.
7

8 129. There are approximately 195 Divine Word Missionaries in the Chicago Province.
9 The Divine Word Missionaries work in the states of Illinois, Iowa, Wisconsin, Ohio, Missouri,
10 Tennessee, New Jersey, and Washington D.C; in several island nations in the Caribbean
11 including Antigua, Jamaica, B.V.I., Montserrat, St. Kitts, and St. Maarten; as well as in various 12 provinces in Canada. Divine Word Missionaries are involved in a variety of ecclesiastical
13 duties—or ministries—including parish administration and communications, Catholic formation,
14 Catholic Biblical Apostolate, spiritual direction, vocation recruitment, fundraising, and other 15 specialized ministries.
16

17 130. SVD has three formation centers which educate future SVD members in the pre-
18 novitiate, novitiate, and post-novitiate formation programs: Divine Word College in Epworth,
19 Iowa; Divine Word Theologate in Chicago, Illinois; and Catholic Theological Union in Chicago,
20 Illinois. Divine Word Missionaries oversee and implement each of these programs.
21

22 131. As an international religious missionary order, SVD’s members can be assigned to 23 other countries by the SVD Generalate in Rome. Each year, Rome assigns newly final professed 24 members to various countries around the world where the Society works, including the United 25 States. Additionally, the Chicago Province often invites foreign Divine Word Missionaries to 26 come to the United States to maintain its missionary outreach. Many of the members who are 27
28

1 assigned to the United States will remain in this country for years, including members who
2 eventually become U.S. citizens or lawful permanent residents.

3 132. Because of the diverse communities, cultures, and nationalities that Society of the 4 Divine Word serves, it is critical that Divine Word Missionaries have the cultural and language
5 skills to properly perform their duties. In the Chicago Province alone, Society of the Divine
6 Word has particularly large Spanish-, Polish-, and Vietnamese-speaking populations that require 7 Divine Word Missionaries with those language skills to receive spiritual guidance and 8 instruction, ministry, and sacraments. Individuals with the proper skillset and experience for 9 these roles are hard to find and hard to replace. Additionally, given the ongoing changing
10 realities in the American Catholic Church, such as an aging native-born clergy and religious 11 community, and fewer American (born and naturalized) candidates becoming priests, many 12 dioceses and religious orders, including SVD, are becoming increasingly dependent on foreign 13 born priests. This trend is expected to worsen in the near future.

14 133. Three SVD Divine Word Missionaries currently hold an H-1B visa. Each of these 15 Divine Word Missionaries were carefully selected for their unique skills, spoken languages, and 16 expertise, and they are critical for their respective ministries. This includes pastoring parishes,
17 performing administrative work, mentoring newly professed members working in the parish,
18 providing spiritual counsel and guidance in a variety of languages, and serving as church canon
19 law consultants (which requires further specialized training). These individuals' skills are 20 necessary to serve their ethnically diverse parishes.

21 134. Although the Chicago Province of SVD has at least eight priests working in 22 nonimmigrant status with an R-1 visa—an immigration status which allows a nonimmigrant
23 worker in a religious occupation to temporarily live and work in the United States, under certain 24

1 conditions—there are key limitations on this status that prevent it from being a long-term
2 solution for SVD’s ministerial needs. For example, an individual in R-1 status can only maintain
3 that status for up to five years. Although there is a path to a green card from R-1 status, it is a
4 long, involved process and currently has a lengthy backlog for an immigrant visa to become
5 available. Given this backlog, the ability to change nonimmigrant status to H-1B status is the 6 only lawful alternative available to SVD to maintain its priests’ legal status in the United States.
7 SVD planned to petition for H-1B status for each of these individuals prior to the expiration of 8 their R-1 status, to ensure they could continue their work uninterrupted. If this is not possible
9 because of the prohibitive fee under the Proclamation, a Divine Word Missionary would need to 10 leave the U.S. and wait abroad for at least one year before he could receive another R-1 visa.
11 This would cause significant disruption and severely impact the parishes where these priests
12 perform vital services.

13
14
15 135. The H-1B visa is the lawful pathway SVD must use to continue its critical
16 religious services ministry in the United States. As a non-profit, paying the $100,000 fee per 17 employee would create a crippling burden on the Chicago Province, and would pose serious
18 barriers to the continuity of its ministry in key areas. If SVD is unable to apply for H-1B visas
19 for its staff, it will be unable to continue providing critical language- and culturally-accessible
20 religious services to its congregants, impacting its congregants’ spiritual needs and interfering 21 with SVD’s religious exercise. In other words, SVD’s inability to employ these professionals will 22 harm not only the organization, but also the communities it serves, especially those which 23 require the unique skillset of the individuals who would otherwise apply for H-1B visas.
24 Furthermore, SVD had already begun plans and reserved the fees already required to apply for 25 H-1B visas for its necessary religious workers, to fill roles for which U.S. citizens are simply not
26
27
28

1 available. These plans must now be placed on hold since SVD cannot afford to pay the 2 extravagant $100,000 fee for each necessary individual.

3 136. Plaintiff Fathers of St. Charles is a part of the Congregation of the Missionaries
4 of St. Charles – Scalabrinians, an international community of brothers who have felt the call to 5 consecrate themselves to a missionary life in service of migrants. The Congregation serves
6 migrants and refugees all over the world and is divided into several provinces or regions, each
7 responsible for serving certain countries. The province of Fathers of St. Charles is the St. John
8 the Baptist Province, whose jurisdiction covers the United States, Canada, Mexico, Guatemala,
9 and El Salvador. The provincial office is located in Oak Park, Illinois and supports a membership 10 of brothers hailing from thirteen different countries who minister in locations all over the 11 province.
12

13
14 137. Because Fathers of St. Charles are called by their faith to be in mission with 15 migrants and refugees, with a special priority for the poorest migrants, it is critical for the 16 members of Fathers of St. Charles to be able to perform all sacramental and liturgical activities in 17 a linguistically and culturally appropriate manner for the communities they serve. For the St.
18 John the Baptist Province, this requires the language and cultural competency to be able to 19 minister to Latin American, Vietnamese, and Brazilian communities throughout the province's
20 jurisdiction. Most members of Fathers of St. Charles speak at least two to three different 21 languages and rotate to different locations both within the province as well as to other
22 Scalabrinian provinces and regions outside the province as part of their calling and mission to be 23 in community with migrants and refugees.
24

25
26 138. The unique mission of the Congregation of the Missionaries of St. Charles and the 27 Fathers of St. Charles requires the St. John the Baptist Province be able to bring members of the 28

1 Congregation into the United States on visas so that they can work with and serve the ethnic
2 communities in the parishes entrusted to Fathers of St. Charles by the bishops. In the past,
3 Fathers of St. Charles has used (and continues to use) R-1 religious worker visas to enable its 4 members to live and work in the United States, and it has also subsequently sponsored its
5 members for permanent residency so that they may remain with the province on a long-term
6 basis. But because R-1 visas are valid only for five-year periods before the recipient must leave
7 the United States for at least a year, and due to processing backlogs that have made it nearly 8 impossible for R-1 visa holders to adjust status to lawful permanent residency before the five-
9 year term of their visa expires, it has recently become necessary for Fathers of St. Charles to 10 sponsor its members already in the United States on R-1 visas for H-1B visas so that they may 11 maintain legal status and continue their work here.

14 139. Fathers of St. Charles currently has three members here on R-1 visas that will 15 expire imminently, and for whom Fathers of St. Charles had planned to petition for H-1B visas in 16 the next few months. The mission and religious calling of Fathers of St. Charles depends heavily
17 on the H-1B visa system and the ability of Fathers of St. Charles to be able to bring members of 18 the Congregation from abroad to work in the United States on H-1B visas on a regular basis.

20 140. The Proclamation and the $100,000 Requirement is therefore devastating to 21 Fathers of St. Charles and their religious calling. Fathers of St. Charles cannot afford to pay
22 $100,000 for each new H-1B visa application. The province's many humanitarian duties would 23 be severely impacted if the province had to find hundreds of thousands of dollars within its 24 budget to cover new H-1B visa applications on an ongoing basis in future years. If the 25 Proclamation remains in effect, Fathers of St. Charles will not be able to maintain the legal status
26 of the three members currently here on R-1 visas and would be forced to send them abroad, with 27
28

1 no ability to fill the positions those members would leave vacant. In turn, the communities in
2 those parishes would not be able to convene and worship in their own language and would be
3 deprived of spiritual guidance and service, in contravention of the mission and spiritual calling of 4 Fathers of St. Charles. The $100,000 Requirement substantially burdens Fathers of St. Charles's
5 mission and ability to serve the poorest of migrants, and it currently unclear how Fathers of St.
6 Charles will be able to continue their spiritual work if they cannot access the H-1B visa system
7 going forward.
8

9 141. Plaintiff Church on the Hill is a religious institution located in the Appalachia
10 region of the United States. The church congregation was formed seventy years ago but was 11 officially incorporated in its current structure in 2003.
12

13 142. In 2021, Church on the Hill decided to branch out and establish a new church, 14 also known as a "church plant." The church plant, which began with twenty members from 15 Church on the Hill, formed a new congregation in a nearby city. The new church serves an 16 underserved, economically disadvantaged region in Appalachia and now has approximately 200
17 members in its congregation.
18

19 143. Both Church on the Hill and the church plant have established ministries for 20 children, youth, families, and students, as well as community outreach that meets both practical
21 and spiritual needs. Some of the ministries in the church plant work with local schools to support
22 parents who are financially struggling and teachers who work with these low-income families.
23 Church members regularly visit sick and elderly community members in the hospital and in their 24 homes. Through these efforts, the church has become a trusted presence in the community,
25 standing alongside families in hardship and serving as a stabilizing and hope-filled influence in a 26 region marked by economic challenge.
27
28

1 144. The church would not be what it is today if it had not hired foreign talent through
2 the visa system to assist with establishing this second church. Several years ago, Church on the
3 Hill hired a pastor from the United Kingdom on an R-1 visa, a temporary non-immigrant visa
4 available for religious workers. Prior to working for Church on the Hill, this pastor shared with
5 the Church Board his vision and calling to start a new church. The Board found this vision so
6 compelling that they offered a job to the pastor and then became the sponsor for his new petition
7 for nonimmigrant worker status and green card petition, which allowed him to adjust to legal
8 permanent residency from his R-1 visa. This pastor was and is integral to the church's mission 9 and work.
10

11
12 145. To help make this vision of a second church a reality, Church on the Hill
13 sponsored for an R-1 visa a second pastor from the United Kingdom, Plaintiff John Smith
14 ("Pastor John Smith"), who was a colleague of the first pastor the church had sponsored for an 15 R-1 visa. The two pastors' work has allowed Church on the Hill to expand to its second location.
16 Pastor John Smith's relationship to the first pastor, their long history, their common vision, their 17 complementary qualifications, skills, and giftings create a unique synergy so that together they 18 can co-pastor the church plant and its local community.
19

20 146. Pastor John Smith is a native of England and is currently present in the U.S. on an 21 R-1 visa. It was important to hire Pastor John Smith with an R-1 visa because of his unique
22 qualifications and partnership with the first pastor. In addition, he brings extensive experience
23 and training in cross-cultural mission work, having served and trained in diverse contexts
24 overseas. This background has shaped his ability to minister effectively across generational,
25 cultural, and socioeconomic boundaries within the Appalachian Highlands. Combined with his 26 theological preparation, pastoral leadership, and long history of shared vision with the first 27
28

1 pastor, his contribution could not be replicated by hiring unrelated local talent. Pastor Smith's
2 leadership is critical for the growth and development of the church plant.

3 147. Pastor John Smith's R-1 visa is set to expire on November 1, 2026, at which time
4 he will have reached the maximum five-year stay on his R-1 visa in the United States. The 5 church has sponsored Pastor John Smith for a green card, and that application has been 6 approved, but there is a long processing backlog that is delaying his ability to adjust status to 7 lawful permanent residency. Prior to the Proclamation, Church on the Hill planned to apply for 8 an H-1B visa for Pastor John Smith so that he could remain in the U.S. and continue his ministry
9 with the church while he waits to be able to adjust status. The church had retained immigration
10 counsel to apply for an H-1B visa for him just prior to the Presidential Proclamation at issue.
11

12 148. After the $100,000 Requirement was instituted, the church was forced to notify 13 Pastor Smith that it cannot afford to pay this fee. Without an H-1B visa, Pastor John Smith will 14 be unable to continue working for Church on the Hill after November 2026.
15

16 149. The required fee will directly harm Church on the Hill, their mission, and their 17 members. The church is worried that the fee will prevent them from retaining the pastoral 18 leadership that is central to their mission and the stability of their congregation. The fee has 19 created real concern about the future of the church and the community that depends on it.
20

21 150. If the H-1B fee continues in force, the church and its members will face a staffing
22 shortage. Pastor John Smith has played a pivotal role growing the church, including shepherding
23 the church plant in a nearby city. Pastor Smith leads many of the church's ministries and 24 participates in preaching, teaching and mentoring new leaders. He also plays a key role in 25 developing religious education programs for the church, leading worship and performing 26 outreach to underserved families in the community. As part of Pastor John Smith's ministry, he 27
28

1 has developed important and meaningful relationships with members of Church on the Hill's
2 congregation and community that would be immediately weakened, if not severed completely, if
3 he and his family no longer had legal status in the United States and were forced to leave the 4 country. Many of the church's ministries and programs will be paused or cut back if Church on
5 the Hill is unable to change Pastor John Smith's status to H-1B. Church on the Hill's existing 6 church staff would not be able to fill the hole in our workforce that Pastor John Smith would 7 leave if it cannot convert his status to continue his employment.
8

9 151. If Pastor John Smith is unable to lawfully remain and work in the United States,
10 the essential services he provides to the congregations and the community will be critically
11 impacted, leaving a vulnerable population and community without the support it needs. Because 12 the other pastor who co-leads the church is dealing with significant health issues, Pastor John 13 Smith's absence would place considerable strain on him and on the church as a whole. Instead of 14 continuing to expand and develop new ministries and outreach, the church would be forced into a
15 position of simply trying to maintain what already exists. This would prevent further growth, 16 limit innovation, and hinder the broader impact the church has been having.
17

18 152. Plaintiff John Smith is a citizen of the United Kingdom who currently lives in 19 the Appalachia region of the United States with his wife and four children. Pastor John Smith
20 came to the United States in 2022 on an R-1 nonimmigrant visa for foreign nationals in religious 21 vocations, and is currently working as a full-time pastor at a church in his area. In addition to his 22 rewarding and important work with the church, Pastor Smith's family have also established deep
23 roots in their local community, where his children attend school, and have developed meaningful
24 connections with their church and broader community. Pastor Smith's elderly mother and step-
25 father also live close by, which allows Pastor Smith and his family to be close to them and 26
27
28

1 continue these familial relationships. Pastor Smith and his wife are in the process of purchasing a
2 home for their family.

3 153. Pastor Smith's R-1 visa allows him to reside in the United States for up to five
4 years until November 1, 2026, but his church offered him a permanent position if he could
5 continue maintaining legal immigrant status in the country, and sponsored him for a green card
6 with an I-360 petition. This I-360 petition was approved last year; however, due to an extreme
7 backlog in visa processing, Pastor Smith cannot file to adjust his status to lawful permanent
8 residency before his R-1 visa will expire. Thus, Pastor Smith's church retained immigration
9 counsel to file an H-1B petition on Pastor Smith's behalf so he can continue working at the 10 congregation while he waits for the opportunity to adjust his status.
11
12

13 154. Before the church could file Pastor Smith's H-1B petition, however, the 14 Proclamation went into effect. It is not possible for the church to pay such a high fee. The news
15 has left Pastor Smith heartbroken and filled with uncertainty. He too cannot afford to pay this 16 fee, and without the H-1B visa process, he will lose his job at the church and will not be able to 17 remain in the United States beyond his five-year maximum stay on his R-1 visa. This would 18 undermine his ability to continue providing the essential pastoral and community to his church.
19 The new $100,000 fee would not only upend Pastor Smith's plans to remain in the United States
20 and much of the spiritual work he has devoted himself to for the past several years, but also his 21 family's lives and the relationships and plans they had for their future.
22
23

24 4. Research and academic institutions

25 155. Plaintiff UAW International represents 120,000 members in higher education, 26 and Plaintiff UAW Local 4811 represents nearly 50,000 members employed at the University of 27 California. These members include post-doctoral researchers, graduate students, and teaching
28

1 assistants who drive innovation and advances in multiple fields. Plaintiffs UAW International
2 and Local 4811 have numerous members whose employers had planned to file H-1B petitions
3 with USCIS on their behalf. These members may lose their ability to live and work in the United
4 States as a result of the Proclamation.

5
6 156. For example, one UAW International and Local 4811 member is a 31-year-old
7 Indian post-doctoral researcher at a major U.S. research institution whose work focuses on 8 biomedical modeling and developing tools to simplify and accelerate drug discovery. His current 9 projects support advances in treatment for tuberculosis and breast cancer and he is the only
10 person in his lab working on these projects. He is presently employed on a STEM OPT
11 extension, but his projects will not be completed by the time it expires, and his laboratory
12 recommended that the research institute file an H-1B petition on his behalf. The imposition of a
13 $100,000 fee imposed by the Proclamation would be extremely burdensome on the research
14 institution and thus jeopardize both his research and the institution's investment. Since he found
15 out about the Proclamation, he has felt depressed and hopeless about his own future and the 16 future of his work and is finding it difficult to concentrate on his research.

17
18
19 157. A European UAW International member is currently in a postdoctoral position at 20 a major research institution on the East Coast. He is a neuropharmacologist who studies the 21 impacts of opioids generally and fentanyl specifically on pain management, in an effort to 22 identify ways to reduce the risk of addiction. He chose to do his postdoctoral work in the United 23 States specifically because he is aware of the acuity of the opioid epidemic here and hopes to 24 find ways to reduce it. He is currently in the U.S. through a J-1 visa and his current institution
25 planned to sponsor him for an H-1B visa so he could continue this critical work. He is also 26 preparing to submit a major grant application for funding to continue and expand his work at that 27
28

1 institution, on which he would be the primary investigator. If he is unable to obtain an H-1B visa,
2 his institution will lose access to any potential grant funding, and he will not be able to continue
3 this critical research. When he became aware of the Proclamation, he was also personally
4 devastated and has suffered from anxiety and insomnia because his entire career and the future of 5 his research are now up in the air.

7 158. Plaintiff AAUP has 50,000 members who are faculty and other academic
8 professionals. Plaintiff AAUP has numerous members whose employers had planned to file H-
9 1B petitions with USCIS on their behalf. These members may lose their ability to live and work
10 in the United States as a result of the Proclamation.

12 159. For example, one AAUP member had an offer from the major research university
13 where that member is currently completing a postdoc. The university intended to seek an H-1B
14 visa for this member, and they expected the H-1B process to be completed this fall. However, the 15 university has placed the processing of this member's H-1B visa on hold indefinitely due to the 16 $100,000 fee.

18 160. The potential loss of these postdoctoral researchers, scientists, and academics will 19 not just harm the individuals and the institutions that employ them. It will result in significant 20 and potentially catastrophic setbacks to research that benefits the American public and ensures 21 the United States remains a leading source of innovation and expertise. For example, the fee will 22 likely result in sharp cutbacks in the employment of highly talented foreign workers and severe 23 setbacks for university research, graduate programs, and clinical care, compounding an 24 anticipated shortfall of 5.3 million skilled workers over the next decade.⁴¹ Faculty search
25

26
27
28 ⁴¹ Michael T. Nietzel, Universities May Face Huge Costs From Trump's $100,000 H-1B Visa Fee,
Forbes (Sept. 26, 2025), <https://perma.cc/FB3Y-LNJ4>.

1 committees are already being told they have to exclude top candidates if those candidates would
2 need H-1B visas. Andrea Liu, a physicist at the University of Pennsylvania, said the fee would
3 damage the future of her research group and described the impact as “an utter disaster—yet
4 another body blow to science.”⁴²

6 161. Plaintiff Phoenix Doe is a citizen of India residing in the Northern District of
7 California. She is a postdoctoral researcher at a U.S. university whose cap-exempt H-1B petition
8 has been halted due to the $100,000 fee imposed by the Proclamation. Her research focuses on 9 identifying the genetic and epigenetic causes of vision loss due to aging, diseases such as 10 diabetes, and rare inherited genetic abnormalities of unknown etiology, with the goal of finding 11 new ways to diagnose and treat blinding conditions. Her laboratory relies on her as its first 12 postdoctoral scholar to build and advance its research program, and her ongoing work requires a
13 minimum of two more years. Due to the value of her skills and research expertise in both 14 computational biology as well as wet-lab bench research, her university employer approved her
15 for H-1B sponsorship, and she expected the process to be completed by this December, allowing 16 her to visit her home country for the first time in six years. Instead, as a result of the 17 Proclamation, her university has indefinitely paused moving forward with the processing of her
18 application. She is suffering debilitating stress and anxiety due to the uncertainty of her position,
19 which exacerbates the PTSD from which she suffers. Without relief, Plaintiff Phoenix will be 20 forced to leave her postdoctoral position the United States within four months, causing serious
21 professional and personal harm. Her departure will set back the crucial research she is 22 conducting, disrupting the lab’s ongoing work and ability to secure future research funding,
23
24
25
26

27
28 ⁴² Natasha Gilbert, Trump’s $100K Visa Fee for Foreign Talent: How Will It Affect Researchers?,
Nature (Sept. 24, 2025), <https://perma.cc/2BUK-T49N>.

1 preventing her department from getting any future funding through her, and potentially delaying
2 the availability of treatment for the conditions that are the focus of her research.

3 VII. CAUSES OF ACTION

4 COUNT 1

5 Against Defendant Trump

6 Actions ultra vires, in excess of statutory authority

7 162. Plaintiffs incorporate the factual allegations above as if set forth herein.

8 163. The Proclamation cites Sections 212(f) and 215(a) of the Immigration and 9 Nationality Act (INA), 8 U.S.C. §§ 1182(f) and 1185(a), as providing statutory authority for 10 imposing a requirement that employers submitting a petition for an H-1B visa make a “payment”
11 of $100,000 to the United States.
12

13 164. Neither INA § 212(f) nor § 215(a) authorizes the President to impose the 14 $100,000 Requirement.

15 165. Nor has Congress or the Constitution otherwise authorized the President to 16 impose this fee, tax, or other revenue-generating requirement on H-1B petitioners. To the 17 contrary, under the Constitution, the power of taxation belongs to Congress. U.S. Const. art. I, 18 § 8, cl. 1.
19

20 166. The cited statutes, INA §§ 212(f) and 215(a), cannot be reasonably interpreted to 21 be a delegation of Congress’s tax power.
22

23 167. If these provisions were interpreted to provide this authority, they would violate
24 the nondelegation doctrine because they contain no intelligible principles to guide decision-
25 making on the amount of money that can be raised or the use of the money collected.

26 168. That interpretation would also violate the major questions doctrine because these 27 provisions contain no clear Congressional authorization for this action of great political and 28

1 economic significance. And, there is no basis for delegated authority for the President to raise
2 and spend money as he sees fit.

3 169. INA § 212(f) and § 215(a) also do not authorize the President to override other
4 provisions of the INA. Trump v. Hawaii, 585 U.S. 667, 689 (2018).

5
6 170. In separate provisions, the INA sets standards for and limits on the entry into the 7 United States of H-1B visa recipients and authorizes DHS—not the President—to impose limited
8 fees in connection with H-1B visa petitions:

- 9
- 10 a. The INA sets specific requirements for approval under the H-1B visa
11 program. See 8 U.S.C. § 1101(a)(15)(H)(i)(b). It also sets specific caps on 12 the number of people who may be admitted under this program, see 8
13 U.S.C. § 1184(g), reflecting a careful balancing of policy interests
14 between employers' need to hire foreign workers for certain kinds of roles
15 and the interests of American workers in the labor market.
 - 16 b. The INA also limits the fees that DHS may impose under 8 U.S.C.
17 § 1356(m) for adjudication and naturalization services. Such fees “may be 18 set at a level that will ensure recovery of the full costs of providing all 19 such services, including the costs of similar services provided without 20 charge to asylum applicants or other immigrants. Such fees may also be 21 set at a level that will recover any additional costs associated with the 22 administration of the fees collected.” 8 U.S.C. § 1356(m). In accordance 23 with the APA, DHS sets the amounts of these fees through notice-and-24 comment rulemaking. See, e.g., 89 Fed. Reg. 6194.
- 25
26
27
28

1 c. Beginning with the passage of the American Competitiveness and
2 Workforce Improvement Act of 1998, Congress (via the INA) imposed
3 additional fees on employers specifically in connection with H-1B visa
4 petitions. See 8 U.S.C. § 1184(c)(9)-(14). The INA also directs that these 5 fees be segregated into a special account and used for specified purposes.
6 8 U.S.C. § 1356(s). Congress set these limits for the purpose of balancing
7 impacts to the labor market for American workers while permitting foreign 8 workers in this category to be hired for certain kinds of roles.
9

10 171. The INA also includes detailed provisions to address misuse of the H-1B visa
11 program. See 8 U.S.C. § 1182(n)(2); 20 C.F.R. § 655.800 et seq.
12

13 172. In directing DHS to require a $100,000 “payment” to an unspecified account and 14 for unspecified uses, in connection with H-1B visa petitions, the Proclamation conflicts with and 15 supplants the structure Congress has established for approval and entry into the United States of 16 H-1B visa recipients, including the fee structure for adjudication services in general and for the 17 H-1B visa program in particular.
18

19 173. Nor does the President have authority under 8 U.S.C. § 1182(f) to restrict workers
20 from entering the United States because their employers failed to make this payment.
21

22 174. The Proclamation’s requirement to pay $100,000 as a condition of entry or re-
23 entry to the United States, combined with the expansive and effectively standardless discretion of 24 the Secretary of Homeland Security to disregard the Proclamation’s dictates and Congressional 25 intent, adds novel eligibility requirements, conflicts with, and supplants the structure Congress
26 has established for the adjudication of H-1B petitions, issuance of H-1B visas, and entry into the 27 United States for those with H-1B visas.
28

COUNT 2

Against Agency Defendants

Violation of the Administrative Procedure Act – 5 U.S.C. § 706(2)(A), (C)

Not in Accordance with Law, In Excess of Statutory Authority

175. Plaintiffs incorporate the factual allegations above as if set forth herein.

176. Agency Defendants require a $100,000 fee as a mandatory requirement upon submission of any new H-1B petition received after 12:01 a.m., September 21, 2025.

177. The new $100,000 Requirement, an extortionate fee, constitutes final agency action under 5 U.S.C. § 704.

178. Agency Defendants each lack statutory authority to impose the $100,000 Requirement.

179. The $100,000 Requirement is contrary to and/or in excess of the authority provided in provisions of the INA, including (1) the standards for approval and entry into the United States of H-1B visa applicants, as set forth in 8 U.S.C. § 1101(a)(15)(H)(i)(b) and 8 U.S.C. § 1184(g); (2) the fees to be charged to employers submitting petitions for H-1B visa applicants, including the amount of those fees and the purposes for which they may be used, as set forth in 8 U.S.C. § 1184(c)(9)-(14) and 8 U.S.C. § 1356(s); and (3) the fees to be charged generally for adjudication and naturalization services, as set forth in 8 U.S.C. § 1356(m).

180. Nor do the Agency Defendants have the statutory authority to stop adjudicating petitions and visas or to bar individuals from entering the country unless their employers have paid $100,000.

181. The $100,000 Requirement is contrary to law and in excess of statutory authority and must be set aside under 5 U.S.C. § 706(2).

182. In the alternative to the APA, Plaintiffs bring this claim pursuant to the Court's inherent equitable authority to declare unlawful and enjoin unlawful agency action.

1 COUNT 3
2 Against Agency Defendants
3 Violation of the Administrative Procedure Act – 5 U.S.C. § 706(2)(A)
4 Arbitrary and Capricious

5 183. Plaintiffs incorporate the factual allegations above as if set forth herein.

6 184. Under the APA, a court shall set aside an action if it is arbitrary and capricious. 5
7 U.S.C. § 706(2)(A). An action is arbitrary and capricious if the agency “relied on factors which 8 Congress had not intended it to consider, entirely failed to consider an important aspect of the 9 problem, offered an explanation for its decision that runs counter to the evidence before the 10 agency, or is so implausible that it could not be ascribed to a difference in view or the product of 11 agency expertise.” Motor Vehicle Mfrs. Ass’n of U.S., Inc. v. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co., 463
12 U.S. 29, 43 (1983). “When an agency changes course . . . , it must be cognizant that longstanding 13 policies may have engendered serious reliance interests that must be taken into account.” Dep’t
14 of Homeland Sec. v. Regents of the Univ. of Cal., 140 S. Ct. 1891, 1913 (2020).

15 185. Agency Defendants failed to consider the carefully crafted fees and factors
16 Congress intended for DHS to consider when adjusting fees for adjudication of H-1B petitions. 8
17 U.S.C. § 1356(m), for example, calls for DHS to consider the costs of providing adjudication and 18 naturalization services. But the $100,000 payment is untethered from the cost of adjudicating H-
19 1B petitions or any other petitions.

20 186. Agency Defendants failed to consider the adverse impacts of the $100,000
21 requirement on small businesses, non-profits, and governmental jurisdictions, as required by the 22 Regulatory Flexibility Act. 5 U.S.C. §§ 603-604. Agencies are required to consider small entities’
23 ability to pay and to consider creating exemptions, discounts, or other alternatives for small 24 entities, and DHS typically has required small and non-profit employers to pay less in fees. But 25
26
27
28

1 here, the Agency Defendants did not consider ability to pay the $100,000 Requirement or explain
2 its unreasoned departure from that framework.

3 187. Agency Defendants failed to consider the substantial burden that the $100,000
4 Requirement places on religious organizations who cannot afford to pay that exorbitant amount
5 and, as a result, will lose their pastors and priests.
6

7 188. Agency Defendants failed to consider the negative impacts of the $100,000
8 Requirement on schools, hospitals, and communities, especially in underserved areas where 9 school districts and hospitals struggle to hire teachers and doctors and rely on the H-1B program
10 to ensure effective health care and educational services for their communities.
11

12 189. Agency Defendants failed to consider the reliance interests of regulated parties
13 like Plaintiffs and their members. The agencies have never increased H-1B fees by six figures in 14 one go and have never done it without warning. Agency Defendants should have considered the 15 chaos that this enormous and sudden fee would predictably create for regulated parties, who 16 were caught by surprise and had no opportunity to prepare for it.
17

18 190. Agency Defendants failed to consider alternative ways to address the purported
19 problems with the H-1B program, such as more closely scrutinizing any employers who may be 20 abusing the program, under the existing statutory enforcement mechanisms, rather than imposing 21 a blanket $100,000 fee on all employers.
22

23 191. Agency Defendants did not consider how the $100,000 Requirement could
24 encourage employers to improperly lower wages for their workers—U.S. workers or H-1B
25 workers—in order to maintain needed staff but recoup additional costs paid to the government.
26

27 192. While employers must provide a $100,000 payment “to accompany any new H-
28 1B visa petitions submitted after 12:01 a.m. . . . on September 21, 2025,” H-1B FAQ, USCIS

1 (Sept. 21, 2025), <https://perma.cc/9UKN-ZYDG>, Agency Defendants have failed to consider
2 that, as of September 21, 2025, there was no mechanism by which petitioners could submit such 3 a fee.

4
5 193. Agency Defendants have also failed to coherently explain other key information.
6 For instance, the agencies have not explained what will happen to employers who file petitions
7 before a payment system is set up, where the money will go, or how the money will be used. Nor
8 have Agency Defendants explained the impact of the $100,000 Requirement on individuals
9 residing in the United States under another visa program who seek to convert to an H-1B visa
10 while inside the United States.

11
12 194. DHS has also failed to explain what criteria or factors it will consider in 13 determining whether an individual, an employer, or an industry will be exempt from the 14 $100,000 requirement. This failure invites arbitrary, selective enforcement of the new 15 requirement.

16
17 COUNT 4
18 Against Agency Defendants
19 Violations of the Administrative Procedure Act,
20 Regulatory Flexibility Act – 5 U.S.C. §§ 603-604, 706(2)(D)
21 Failure to Conduct Notice and Comment Rulemaking;
22 Rulemaking Without Observance of Procedure Required by Law

23 195. Plaintiffs incorporate the factual allegations above as if set forth herein.

24 196. Notice and comment. The APA requires that agencies provide public notice of, and 25 opportunity to comment on, legislative rules before their promulgation. See 5 U.S.C. §§ 553(b)-
26 (c). The agency must “consider and respond to significant comments received.” See Perez v.
27 Mortg. Bankers Ass’n, 575 U.S. 92, 96 (2015). When the final rule is promulgated, the agency
28 must provide “a concise general statement of [its] basis and purpose.” 5 U.S.C. § 553(c).

1 197. The new requirement of a $100,000 payment is a legislative rule within the
2 meaning of the APA. It “imposes new obligations” on H-1B petitioners, as the $100,000 payment
3 must “accompany” their petition and the petitions will not be adjudicated and their workers will
4 not be granted visas or be allowed to enter the United States without it. Hemp Indus. Ass’n v.
5 Drug Enf’t Admin., 333 F.3d 1082, 1087 (9th Cir. 2003). Legislative rules like the new $100,000
6 payment requirement must go through notice and comment rulemaking. See 5 U.S.C. § 553(b)-
7 (c). USCIS has always provided notice and comment when adjusting fees for H-1B petitions
8 except where Congress provided for the fees by statute. See, e.g., U.S. Citizenship and 9 Immigration Services Fee Schedule and Changes to Certain Other Immigration Benefit Request
10 Requirements, 89 Fed. Reg. 6194 (Jan. 31, 2024), as corrected, 89 Fed. Reg. 20101 (Mar. 21, 11 2024).

12 198. Agency Defendants failed to provide notice and an opportunity for comment as 13 required by the APA and have thus violated 5 U.S.C. §§ 553(b), (c) and 706(2)(D).

14 199. Effective date. Agency Defendants also violated the APA by making the new 15 $100,000 Requirement effective immediately without good cause. The APA requires that a 16 substantive rule be published “not less than 30 days before its effective date.” 5 U.S.C. § 553(d).
17 If an agency claims good cause for making the rule effective in less than 30 days, it must publish
18 its good cause explanation with the rule. Id. § 553(d)(3). Here, however, the new requirement
19 became effective immediately. Agency Defendants failed to publish any good cause finding.

20 200. Regulatory Flexibility Act. Agency Defendants have violated the Regulatory 21 Flexibility Act (RFA), 5 U.S.C. § 601 et seq. Whenever an agency is required to conduct notice 22 and comment rulemaking, an agency must “prepare and make available for public comment an 23 initial regulatory flexibility analysis” that “describe[s] the impact of the proposed rule on small
24
25
26
27
28

1 entities.” 5 U.S.C. § 603(a). The initial analysis must discuss significant alternatives such as
2 establishing different compliance requirements or timetables “that take into account the resources
3 available to small entities” or “exemption from coverage of the rule, or any part thereof, for such
4 small entities.” Id. § 603(c). A final rule must include a final regulatory flexibility analysis that 5 discusses, among other things, significant issues raised by the public or the Chief Counsel for 6 Advocacy of the Small Business Administration and the steps the agency has taken to “minimize 7 the significant economic impact on small entities.” Id. § 604(a). Agency Defendants never 8 published an initial analysis for public comment and did not publish a final analysis either, even 9 though the $100,000 requirement will have an enormous impact on small entities.
10
11

12 VIII. PRAYER FOR RELIEF

13 WHEREFORE, Plaintiffs respectfully request that this Court:

- 14 A. Declare unlawful and set aside sections 1, 2, and 3(a) of the Proclamation;
- 15 B. Declare unlawful and set aside enforcement and implementation of sections 1, 2, and 3(a)
16 of the Proclamation, including the requirement to make a $100,000 payment as a
17 prerequisite to adjudicate an H-1B petition or as a condition for visa issuance or entry
18 into the United States for H-1B beneficiaries;
- 19 C. Declare unlawful and set aside any agency guidance, procedures, or determinations made 20 pursuant to, or in implementation of, sections 1, 2, and 3(a) of the Proclamation,
21 including the Agency Policies;
- 22 D. Enjoin Defendants from requiring the $100,000 payment and from conditioning H-1B
23 petition adjudications, visa issuance, or entry on such payment;
- 24 E. Order Defendants to process H-1B petitions under existing law, without the $100,000
25 payment condition;
26
27
28

F. Grant such other and further relief as the Court deems just and proper.

Date: October 3, 2025

Respectfully submitted,

/s/ Karen C. Tumlin

/s/ Cynthia Liao

Karen C. Tumlin (CA Bar No. 234691)
Esther H. Sung (CA Bar No. 255962)
Laura Flores-Perilla (CA Bar No. 355645)
Hillary Li (GA Bar No. 898375)*
Brandon Galli-Graves (TX Bar No. 24132050)*
JUSTICE ACTION CENTER
P.O. Box 27280
Los Angeles, CA 90027
(323) 450-7272
karen.tumlin@justiceactioncenter.org
esther.sung@justiceactioncenter.org
laura.flores-perilla@justiceactioncenter.org
hillary.li@justiceactioncenter.org
brandon.galli-graves@justiceactioncenter.org

Cynthia Liao (CA Bar No. 301818)*
Johanna N. Hickman (D.C. Bar No. 981770)*
Elena Goldstein (D.C. Bar No. 90034087)*
DEMOCRACY FORWARD FOUNDATION
P.O. Box 34553
Washington, DC 20043
(202) 808-1982 (Liao)
cliao@democracyforward.org
hhickman@democracyforward.org egoldstein@democracyforward.org

/s/ Charles H. Kuck*

/s/ Kalpana Peddibhotla

GA Bar No. 429940
KUCK BAXTER LLC
365 Northridge Rd., Suite 300
Atlanta, GA 30350
404-949-8154
Ckuck@immigration.net

Kalpana Peddibhotla (CA Bar No. 200330)
SOUTH ASIAN AMERICAN JUSTICE COLLABORATIVE (SAAJCO)
333 W. San Carlos Street, Suite 600
San Jose, CA 95110
(408) 550-9240
kalpana@saajco.org

/s/ Zachary R. New

/s/ Jesse M. Bless

Zachary R. New*
Atty. Reg. No. (Colorado): 53992
JOSEPH & HALL, P.C.
12203 East Second Ave.
Aurora, CO 80011
(303) 297-9171
zachary@immigrationissues.com

JESSE M. BLESS*
MA Bar # 660713
BLESS LITIGATION LLC
6 Vineyard Lane
Georgetown MA 01833
781-704-3897
jesse@blesslitigation.com

/s/ Greg Siskind

Greg Siskind*
TN Bar No. 14487
SISKIND SUSSER
1028 Oakhaven Road
Memphis, TN 38119
(901) 682-6455
gsiskind@visalaw.com
Counsel for Plaintiffs

* Motion to appear pro hac vice forthcoming